11th-hour strife precedes budget adoption

Paula Hazdovac ...
... Observes boom time strife

■ Final Sparks: Council restores Sunday library hours, continues CBA's destination marketing program and upgrades code enforcement.

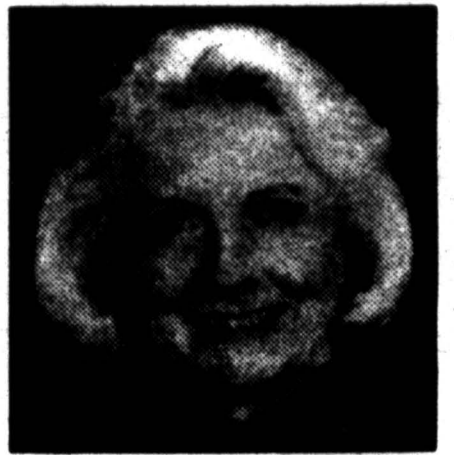

By PAUL WOLF

REFLECTING ON a final budget session that was supposed to be smooth sailing, Carmel Councilwoman Paula Hazdovac joked, "Now that we have money, there's bickering. It was easier when things were austere."

The four-hour meeting Tuesday led to last-minute maneuvers and the adoption of the $8.4 million spending package for the 1996-97 fiscal year, which begins July 1.

Voting 4-1 (with Councilwoman Barbara Livingston dissenting), the Carmel City Council paved the way to restore Sunday library service, continue the Carmel Business Association's tourist-promotion program and upgrade code-enforcement.

As Hazdovac's comment suggests, more choices don't necessarily mean less debate and divisiveness. But at least

Turning over a new leaf at Piccadilly

Garden Club, Kersnar working on park plan

By KENDALL KLYM

TRANSIENTS AND partying youths can say goodbye to the overgrown corners of Piccadilly Park as a gathering place for their "indiscretions."

A week after the Carmel City Council gave the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club permission to redesign, beautify and maintain Piccadilly Park — a place that has gained the reputation as a hangout for teens and transients — plans are on the way to rip out the undergrowth, knock down the fence, fill up the pond and take out the gate.

The park is located on Dolores south of Ocean.

After a private meeting with club members Tuesday afternoon, City Administrator Jere Kersnar was confident that the park would turn over a new leaf with the combined efforts of the city and the garden club.

"We're working together to fashion a plan, the idea being that it would be brought back to council at the July or August meeting," Kersnar said. "With the plan, we can connect Lincoln and Dolores, making policing the property a lot easier."

Last week, city council members voted unanimously in favor of allowing the club to oversee the renovation of the park in lieu of selling or leasing it for commercial and residential development.

'A nuisance'

"It's been a nuisance for the city to maintain as well as a gathering place for undesirables," said Carole Poole, civic chairwoman of the garden club. "We want to create a lovely garden, and we want to relieve the city of the financial burden and problems of security."

Kersnar said a lot needs to be done, though.

"The grading of the park would have to

Big Sur residents assuaged over aircraft

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

IT'S A PEACEFUL morning in Big Sur, when suddenly the chirping of the birds is drowned out by the ominous thomp, thomp, thomp sound of a helicopter. It gets louder and louder, until you realize it's hovering right above your secluded home.

The chopper lingers for a moment and then flies away, the dull thudding noise fading into the distance.

You feel angry and violated, wondering if somebody is just trying to scare you and your animals and peep into your windows. Is it just downright harassment?

This is one case where the helicopter's presence may have been justified because those seemingly innocent-looking tomato plants in your backyard attracted the pilot's attention. (From hundreds of feet up, they looked suspiciously like marijuana plants.)

But Big Sur residents want to make sure every encounter is legitimate.

And so do officials.

That's why at Friday's meeting of the Big Sur Multi-Agency Advisory Council, Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, told residents there is now a complaint procedure to ensure that aerial and ground searches for marijuana are by the book.

The operations are part of a joint task force involving local, state and national agencies, whose goal is to eliminate marijuana crops near private property adjacent to the Los Padres National Forest.

Drug-eradication operations have taken place in Los Padres National Forest for several years, but last year a U.S. Forest Service investigation revealed military personnel, namely U.S. Marines, had overstepped their boundaries by their presence near private property and by leaving trash and evidence of their camp in the forest. As

River School students take to voting booth — cheese pizza wins!

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

ALTHOUGH NOV. 5 is months away, the voters stood patiently in line, awaiting their turn at the ballot box. A few chairs were placed nearby, in case some were too small to reach the voting booths.

One by one, they checked in at the registration table, signed their names and, clutching their ballots and secrecy envelopes, headed over to the voting booths. Shielded on three sides, they cast their votes.

After recess, the election results were announced: math, Babe Ruth and cheese pizza were a few of the day's big winners.

Donna Robinson's second-grade class at Carmel River School had just participated in its first-ever election and had used the same equipment their parents will vote with in November.

The students decided beforehand to vote on "classroom favorites" and narrowed down their voting categories to favorite school subject, color, author, pizza, fruit, baseball star, sports to play and basketball star.

An official-looking ballot was printed and a sample ballot was sent home with students the day before.

Tony Anchondo, registrar of voters for Monterey County, supplied the equipment and instruction for the exercise. He was

Boone Hogen: Hard work the key

Former headmistress returns to speak to graduating class

By DOUG THOMPSON

LAURIE BOONE Hogen, now a student at Harvard University, knew All Saints' Episcopal Day School was a special place when she retired in July 1995 after 18 years as headmistress.

But it took a year away to understand just how special it is.

"I realized being with children in schools is my passion," Hogen told the 1996 All Saints' graduating class last Friday morning. "My learning is fueled by children. I missed you greatly. No one, but no one could take your place."

Hogen, who was married last year and moved to Connecticut, delivered a riveting commencement talk at All Saints' Episcopal Church to an audience comprised of the 23 graduating eighth graders, parents, staff, alumni and the Rev. Peter Farmer, the school's founding headmaster.

Hogen encouraged the graduates to be in charge of their own learning.

"The harder you work," Hogen said, "the smarter you get. It doesn't matter where you live or how much money you have — money doesn't buy talent. We must educate ourselves through self-awareness and not self-centeredness."

Ingredients for success

Hogen said her early educational experiences taught her the importance of humility, honesty and teamwork.

"In addition to working hard, these are the essential ingredients to achieving suc-

Summer reruns, sure, but with the news?!

GOOD grief, the worst has happened!

Remember when KCBA-TV inately followed up its nightly 10 to 11 p.m. local news with a "final" local news from 11 to 11:30 p.m.?

AND it turned out that all they were really doing in that last half hour was REPEATING some of the 10 to 11 stuff? (This went on for months until just recently.)

Well, the people who brought you that landmark clinker have not been abated. They are still at large and at it again!

THEY are, of course, "the Ackerleys" — that is, the Seattle Ackerleys who own KCBA and recently snatched KCCN out of Monterey and put it in the same bed with KCBA in Salinas.

When they announced that KCCN's "fantastic" new local news program would run from 5 to 6:30 p.m., we were suspicious.

"THAT'S an awful long time for one local news program to run," I said to Louie (my Yorkshire terrier, a TV buff). "You don't suppose they're going to resurrect that old KCBA clinker and just REPEAT stuff during the last half hour, do you?"

Louie just began leafing through TV Guide. He doesn't talk much.

BUT, alas and alack, that is precisely what they're doing! Sixty minutes of what passes for news at the Ackerley compound in Salinas, followed by 30 minutes of reruns!

Swell.

NOT ONLY do KCBA and KCCN now share the same building, the same general manager (Mark Faylor), and the same news director (John Freeman — no relation to the Montana Freeman), they also share staff members and a lot of the same video!

For instance, Les Batinas, KCBA's veteran Santa Cruz reporter, can now be seen nightly on BOTH stations — saying exactly the same things with exactly the same video.

THIS is an important public service, because if you didn't quite understand him the first time, you can catch him later that night on the other station!

Also in that category is KCBA's capable reporter Heidi Linkenbach, who is becoming a familiar face on KCCN, as well. And remember, in this Ackerley operation with interchangeable parts, they moved veteran weatherman Barry Brown from KCBA to KCCN — at least for now.

NOW if all this doesn't convince you that KCBA and KCCN are two separate, independent and distinct television news sources (instead of Tweedledum and Tweedledee) — well, I just don't know what more the Ackerleys could possibly do!

Why won't you take their word for it?

P.S. — Are KCBA's minions beginning to feel like a farm team for KCCN? Well, as we understand it, not ALL of them.

Sam Farr

By PAUL WOLF

WHEN REP. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, met informally with Monterey County mayors last week, one thing was apparent: There are more shared problems among the 12 cities than problems unique to any one of them.

Farr, a guest at the monthly mayors' meeting last Friday, sought to be as nonpartisan as possible, leading a roundtable discussion of the county's future. But his own Democratic orientation came through when commenting on the current cut-taxes fever and the cut-backs for which he blames the Republicans.

"Everyone wants to put more money in the pockets of individuals," Farr said, at the meeting at La Playa Hotel in Carmel. "But no one is talking about what kind of communities we will have when there is less money for parks, the water systems, schools and other services."

The mayors at the meeting were Ken White from Carmel; Dan Albert, Monterey; Alan Styles, Salinas; Don Jordan,

'Everyone wants to put more money in the pockets of individuals. But no one is talking about what kind of communities we will have when there is less money for parks, the water systems, schools and other services.'

Farr, area mayors analyze problems, seek solutions

Seaside; Bob Davis, vice mayor of Pacific Grove; Jim Vocelka, Marina; David Pendergrass, Sand City; Jack Barlich, Del Rey Oaks; Leonard Dart, Greenfield; and Elizabeth Williams, Gonzales.

Here are some of the problems and challenges they identified:

■ The unreliability of state block grants.

If the federal government dismantled social programs and channeled money to the states to create programs of their own image, the result would be unpredictable at best, disastrous at worst, many mayors agreed.

Some of the mayors said the state cannot be trusted for equitable allocations. A recent example, they agreed, was the state's distribution of Proposition 172 funds, which came from a statewide ballot supporting new revenues for local law enforcement.

The state gave the money to the counties, and most counties kept it all for themselves. It was atypical that Monterey County agreed to share 10 percent

Brown confident he can topple Farr on Nov. 5

By PAUL WOLF

CONGRESSIONAL CHALLENGER Jess Brown is counting on his "moderate" Republican status and the relative independence of Central Coast voters to send him to Washington.

Brown's opponent, Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, who has served the 17th Congressional District since 1993, has many natural advantages, not the least of which is incumbent standing on a turf that favors registered Democrats 5-3.

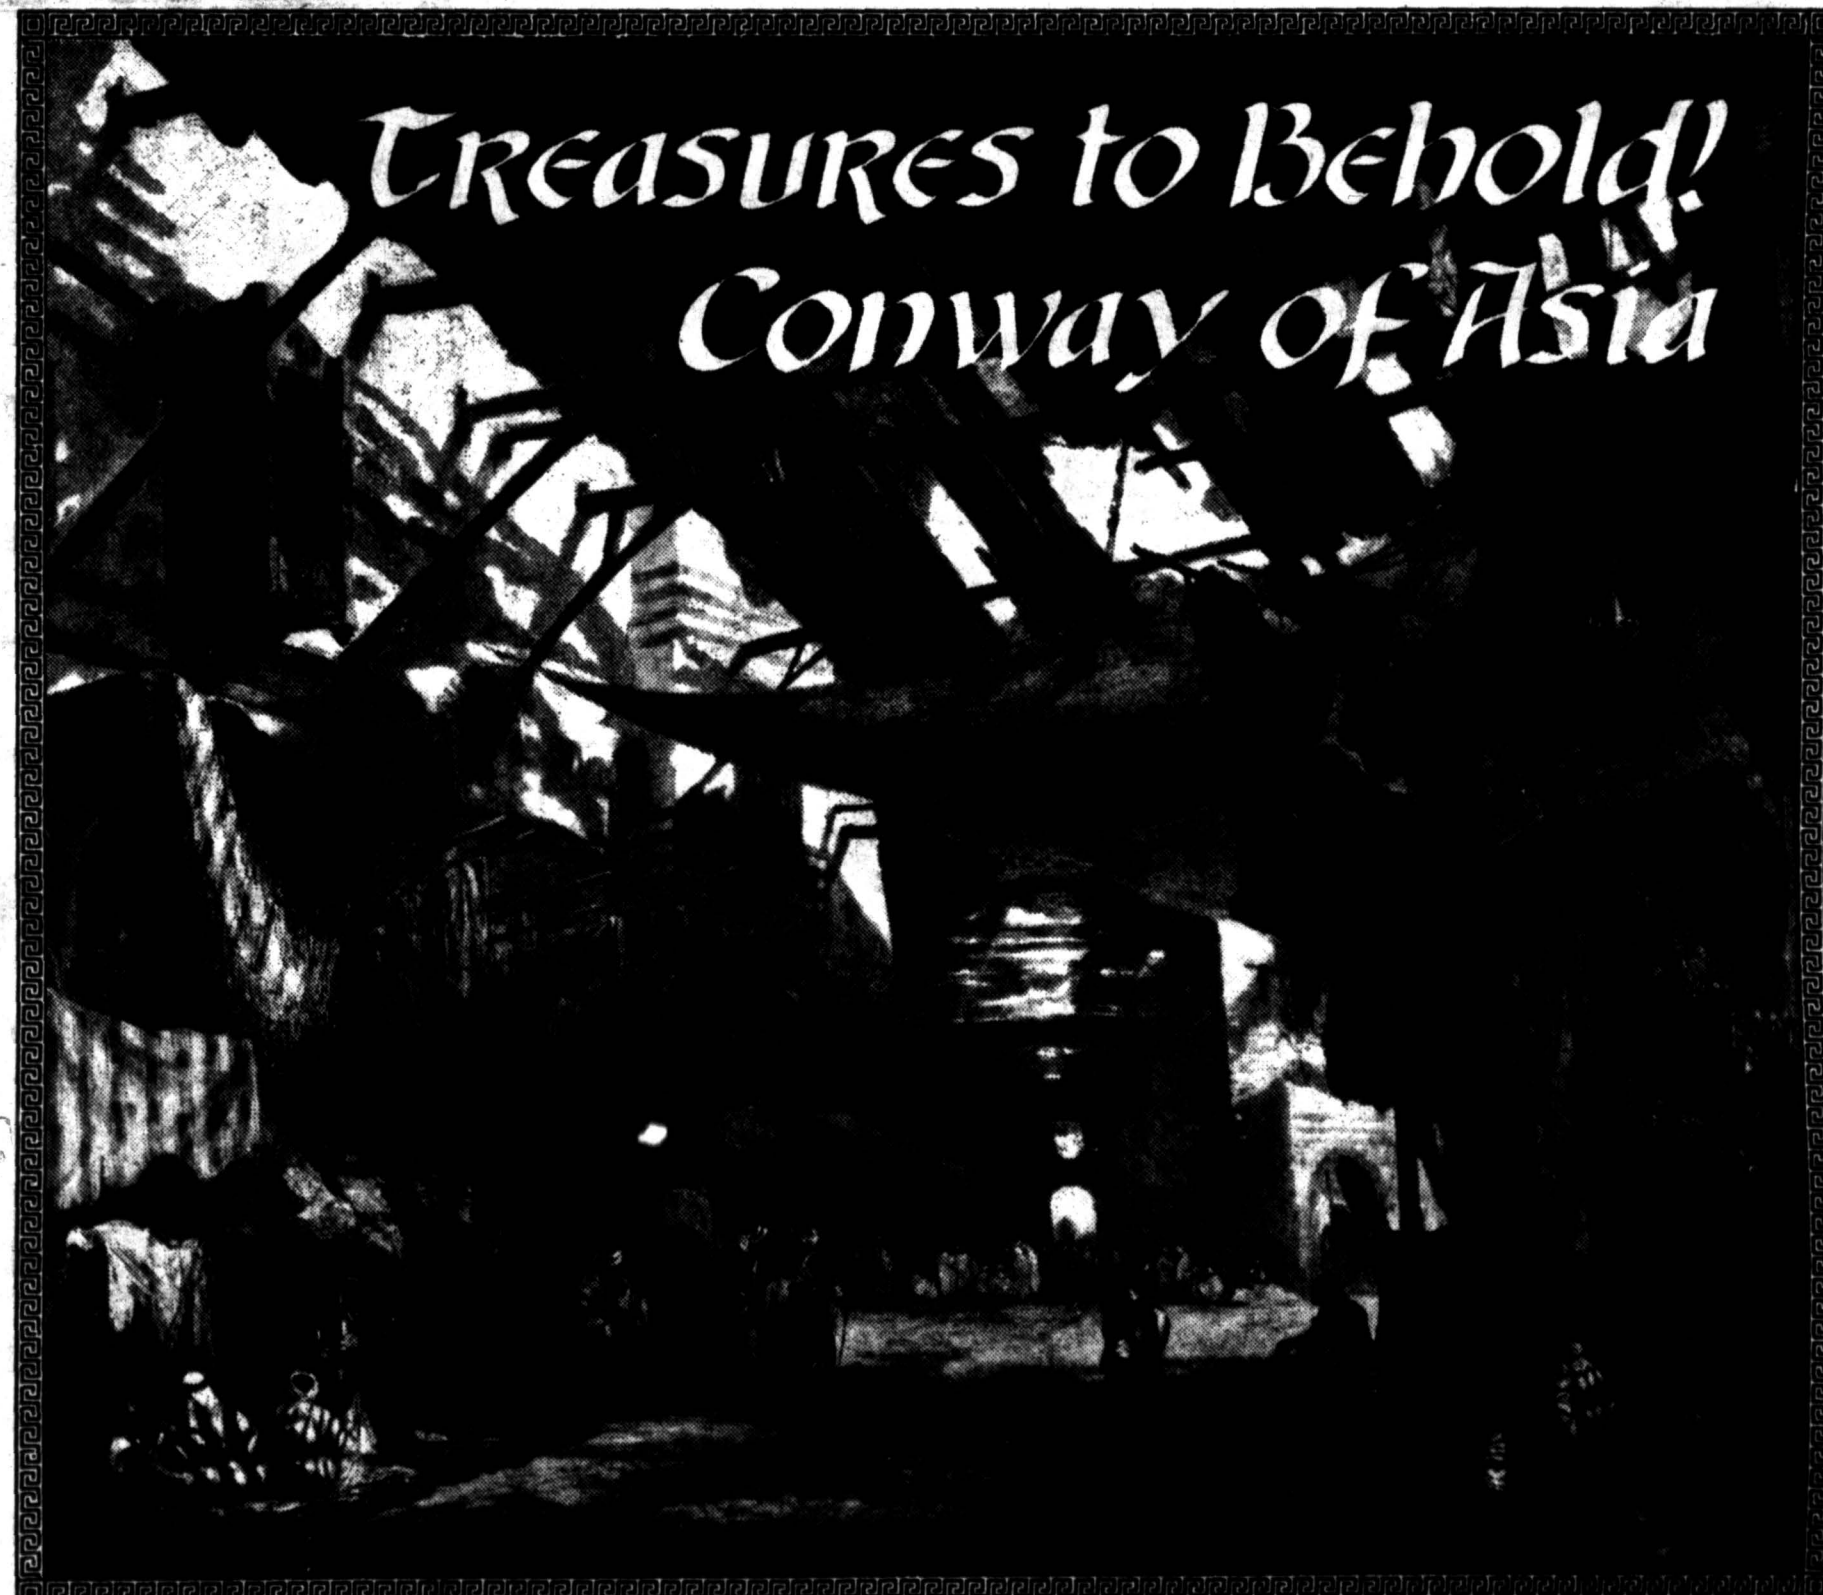

Still, Brown states: "I have assumed that my chances of winning are very good. It is definitely possible to win this district because the

Sheriff's Log

HERE'S A look at the more significant items of activity logged by the Monterey County Sheriff's Department from Tuesday, June 4 through Monday, June 10.

"Carmel" entries do not include calls from within the city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea, which is under the jurisdiction of the Carmel Police Department.

TUESDAY, JUNE 4

Carmel Valley: Credit cards, a stereo and miscellaneous clothing were stolen out of a car. The passenger window was shattered to gain entry. Estimated loss: $800.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that two male juveniles harassed her son and his friend while they were swimming.

Carmel Valley: A man reported that he lost his wedding ring at a country club.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her ex-boyfriend was refusing to return the car she let him borrow.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her landlord may have entered her house without her permission.

Pebble Beach: A man reported that cameras and lenses were stolen from his residence. He suspects his ex-girlfriend, who moved out of his home while he was recovering from surgery.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5

Pebble Beach: A woman reported being sexually assaulted by two men at a resort.

Pebble Beach: After locating a juvenile suspended from high school who resides in Pebble Beach, the Pacific Grove Police Department requested assistance in conducting a search for weapons at the juvenile's residence.

Carmel Valley: A man was arrested for illegally inhabiting an old shed for the past three years. He had also burglarized an old mobile home on the same property, selling the stolen items to neighbors.

Carmel Valley: A woman hit and bit her husband during an argument. The husband suffered a bite mark on his shoulder, and the wife was transported to jail for spousal abuse. The couple had been in the process of getting a divorce at the time of the argument.

Carmel Valley: A man reported that another man had stolen his bicycle. The suspect was contacted and returned the bike. No charges are pending.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her son had run away from home. He returned that evening.

Carmel Valley: A landlord reported having a problem with a tenant, who had refused him access to her land.

THURSDAY, JUNE 6

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her 15-year-old daughter ran away from home. She was believed to be in the company of some of her friends.

Carmel: A man reported being assaulted by another man. Witnesses reported otherwise.

Fuerst: Interim water supply may be available in September

By PAUL WOLF

AN INTERIM source of water could be made available to Monterey Peninsula cities as early as September, according to Darby Fuerst, general manager of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

Peninsula water directors Monday will revisit a proposal to divide 150 acre-feet of recycled water seven ways — to the county and six cities within the MPWMD.

The water would come from the two-year-old Pebble Beach Water Reclamation Project, a $34 million sewer water recycling system operated by the MPWMD, the Pebble Beach Community Services District and the Carmel Area Wastewater District.

Because the Pebble Beach Co. footed the bill, it is allowed to keep 430 acre-feet of water annually for irrigating its golf courses, while 270 acre-feet are directed toward MPWMD conservation efforts.

The water board is scheduled to meet at 7 p.m. Monday at the Monterey City Council Chambers on Pacific Street in Monterey. The public will be allowed to comment on the proposal, which is coming before the board for the third time.

Although 150 acre-feet split seven ways is not considered a lot of water, the jurisdictions within the MPWMD eagerly await its release because no new water supplies appear to be forthcoming.

Group urges water district to take action, save money, on initiative

By PAUL WOLF

A CITIZENS' group is urging the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) to save $70,000 by scheduling a Nov. 5 ballot measure, rather than waiting for a compulsory special election next year, on proposed legislation to freeze Peninsula water demand.

As it stands, the Protect Our Water Resources (POWR) group expects to have gathered signatures from 10 percent of the Peninsula's registered voters by the end of August. That would force a vote of the people, but be too late for the November ballot.

A measure accompanying the presidential ballot would cost the MPWMD $70,000; a special election — which would probably be held in June — would run about $140,000, according to Ray Millard, water board treasurer and MPWMD administrative services manager.

Representatives of POWR will make a presentation before MPWMD directors on Monday. The water board meeting begins at 7 p.m. in the Monterey City

Carmel: A woman reported being concerned about the "irrational" behavior of her neighbor.

Carmel Valley: Deputies responding to reports of a bar fight arrived to find that all parties had left. No injuries were involved, and a bar employee told deputies that the incident was more of a wrestling match than a fight.

Carmel: Deputies responded to reports of a fight involving a woman wielding a straight razor. It was found that the woman, who agreed to leave the scene, hadn't committed a crime and did not meet the criteria for a mental observation hold.

Carmel Valley: A woman reported that her 13-year-old daughter, who had gone out with a friend, had failed to return home.

Carmel: A woman reported finding a "hot spot" in the floor of her room. It was believed to be caused by a recessed lighting fixture. The fire department responded to check the residence.

Carmel Valley: Two men walked into a grocery store, headed to the dairy section, broke the seals of several whipping cream canisters and inhaled the nitrous oxide gas ("whip hits"). One of the men then stole a bottle of alcohol. They were both apprehended while exiting the store.

SUNDAY, JUNE 9

Big Sur: A woman reported that she and her husband were accosted in a restaurant by a man who demanded to know why they had a "disabled" sticker on their car. The restaurant manager asked the man to leave the couple alone. The man subsequently returned to his table, finished his meal and left without incident.

Carmel: A man reported finding a wallet in the men's restroom at a shopping center.

MONDAY, JUNE 10

Big Sur: A man reported the loss of his gun and camera after a fishing trip.

Pebble Beach: A gas station attendant reported finding a wallet, which was returned to its owner later that day.

Pebble Beach: A business owner reported that an ex-employee of hers might want to gain entry into Pebble Beach with an invalid gate pass. Pebble Beach security was notified of the case.

Pebble Beach: A man reported having difficulty in ending a relationship with a woman. He was advised to seek a restraining order if the problem persists.

Carmel: A woman reported that a man, whom she thought might have been intoxicated, came to her front door and asked her for some wine. After she told him to go home and go to bed, he responded by making obscene gestures at her. An area check failed to locate the man, who carried a skateboard and is believed to be approximately 20 years old.

Carmel Valley: Deputies stood by as PG&E shut off power to a residence. A next-door neighbor, who said he was looking for his lost cat, was discovered behind the residence and detained. While the neighbor was being questioned, another man fled the property on foot.

Carmel: A woman reported receiving hang-up calls during the past three weeks.

The voters' rejection of the New Los Padres Dam last November put the Peninsula years away from a major new supply.

On probation

In October, CAWD reported that the reclamation project was not yet operating at full capacity (800 acre-feet of savings annually). Consequently, the water board decided it would be premature to distribute the water.

Directors were also wary of passing out new water during a water shortage and while Cal-Am Water Co. is on probation for overpumping the Carmel River.

In January, however, the board voted 5-2 to pursue the allocation. Since then, the MPWMD staff has laid the groundwork by studying the environmental impacts of releasing the water.

Fuerst told the newspaper that the staff has determined "preliminarily" that the impacts would be minimal, but the board still could change its mind about the wisdom of the allocation.

The following hurdles must be cleared before the 150 acre-feet can be distributed:

■ Certain "bugs" must be removed from the recycling system, according to Fuerst, who says the project has fallen short both in its goals for water quality and quantity.

■ The environmental study must be completed in compliance with the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA).

■ Directors must authorize the creation of an ordinance, which would be subject to public review and comment. The ordinance would take 30 days to go into effect, making the water available in September at the earliest.

cess," she said.

Hogen said this past year as a student at Harvard has been an eye opener.

"I was the oldest student by about 30 years in graduate school, and I was 10 years older than the professors," she noted. "I've realized how much All Saints' Episcopal Day School has influenced my life."

To the graduates, Boone urged them to realize how much the school has influenced them and to continue moving forward.

"Each of you is a gift of God," she said. "You have many talents and intelligences. The challenge in life is figuring out what they are."

"Be patient. Never give up. Keep life sacred. Cherish the lessons you've learned at All Saints' Episcopal Day School. And I thank you for all the lessons you've taught me."

BALLOT

Council Chambers on Pacific Street.

"While not asking for endorsement of the measure itself, the POWR group is only requesting that the board voluntarily exercise its authority to let the public decide," a POWR media statement said.

Spokespersons say the legislation is necessary to ensure MPWMD holds the line on new water allocations, since the Peninsula community is, in effect, on probation by the state for overpumping the Carmel River.

While Cal-Am Water Co. is under strict orders to reduce water production and dedicate new water sources to bailing itself out of unlawful practices, the district has not been required to freeze demand.

Some MPWMD directors have spoken against the substance of the initiative, although the water board has not discussed or taken action on it. Scheduling the ballot measure would not only save the district money, it would spare POWR of several more weeks of signature gathering, explained POWR co-chair Janice O'Brien.

BROWN: Farr's foe

voters here tend to vote for the person, not the party."

But if the first hurdle is the lopsided party registration, the second is less name recognition for Brown, a second-time congressional candidate who has not held elective office.

But when it comes to public service, Brown is not an unknown. For the past 19 years, the 41-year-old Aptos resident has been executive director of the private Santa Cruz County Farm Bureau.

"Fortunately, the work I've done with the bureau has gotten me very involved in both Santa Cruz County and Monterey County," Brown said.

Farr, meanwhile, was a Monterey County Supervisor before serving in the State Assembly from 1980 to 1993. He became congressman in a special election that followed Rep. Leon Panetta's ascension to President Clinton's White House staff, first as budget director, then as Chief of Staff.

The 1993 congressional primary included a remarkable 26 candidates in an at-large ballot, including Brown, who placed second among Republicans. Fellow Republican Bill McCampbell finished first and went on to lose to Farr in November (51.8 percent to 44.9 percent).

He's got it

McCampbell was a three-time loser in his congressional bid, failing to snatch the 17th District from Panetta in November 1992 and against Farr both in November 1993 and 1994. Brown believes he has what McCampbell didn't — moderate Republican credentials.

Pro-choice on abortion, compassionate on social issues, yet fiscally conservative, Brown said he is well-positioned to edge out Farr. "If I were an ultraconservative, it would be very difficult for me to win this seat on a presidential election year," he said.

Brown was referring to another one of Farr's apparent advantages — the presidential ballot will increase turnout on Nov. 5 — a boon for Democrats in regional contests.

In hindsight, it would seem that if a Republican were to secure the 17th District, 1994 would have been the year to do so. After all, both the House and the Senate fell into Republican hands in a dramatic "Republican Revolution," as the press and pundits called it. Even though McCampbell lost, the numbers revealed that turnout Democrats abounded in the three relevant counties — Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito.

But Farr's advantages on paper are no guarantee of victory in November. State legislative offices that cover much of the same terrain are occupied by Republicans — Bruce McPherson in the coastal 27th Assembly District, and Peter Frusetta in the inland 28th District — who have beaten the odds.

(McPherson is giving up his Assembly seat to challenge Democrat Rusty Areias in the 15th Senate District, which encompasses the 27th and 28th Assembly Districts combined.)

Farr's opponent is married to Laura Brown, who was assistant city manager of Monterey until Nov. 1 and currently serves as general manager of the Soquel Creek Water District.

Whether canvassing the neighborhoods, speaking at fund raisers or discussing the issues with the press and would-be constituents, Brown has discussed not only the challenges facing government, but its proper limitations.

"Government can't and shouldn't do everything, yet some problems have to be dealt with," Brown said, stressing the need for more public-private partnerships that "don't overburden government with costs."

Brown has put his money where his mouth is in his work at the Farm Bureau, citing two projects he helped to launch:

■ The six-year-old Castroville-based organization, FOOD Crops, which has a toll-free number that allows people in need to obtain surplus produce. Some 70,000 people a month in three counties are benefiting from the program.

■ A revolving loan fund that gives money to businesses or nonprofits that want to build affordable housing.

Brown characterized Farr as a spendthrift who has voted repeatedly against balanced federal budgets. "He is always trying to solve a problem by throwing money at it," Brown said.

Also in the race is John Black, who is a candidate for the Natural Law Party.

FARR: With mayors

of its proposition funds with the cities. "I think we aren't confident with any block grant programs," Albert said. "I think we'll get the short end of the stick."

Farr argued that welfare should not be divided and reworked 50 ways because "we need to preserve some kind of national standards."

■ The challenge of accepting differences.

The tension between the slow-growing and fast-growing communities was muted at the meeting, though it was still evident.

Farr insisted the cities should preserve their character as well as adjacent agricultural land by restraining growth and trying to hold on to their current boundaries, rather than expanding them. The congressman cited Carmel as a model for not increasing the territory of its commercial district.

Vocelka explained the logic behind the fast-growing cities' desire to seek commercial expansion.

"As it stands now, we cannot afford a proper police force," the Marina mayor said. "We have a choice: We can either tax the citizens some more or go out and find more business. And I can tell you, people aren't for more taxes."

White suggested detailed, long-range plans are the best means to prepare for growth. "The problem is that one decision follows another that follows another. The problem is when there is no sense that people 40 or 50 years from now could look back and say, 'I'm glad they did that.'"

■ The need for governments to work better together.

The mayors suggested that local, state and federal governments need to improve coordination and communication. A good initial step, they said, was last month's "summit" meeting, which included all the mayors, members of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors and representatives of councils and city staffs.

Farr pointed out that the central component of long-term planning is developing "sustainable economics." In South County, paving over farmland to create living space for farm workers is short-sighted, Farr said. So is supporting growth that might affect the Peninsula as a tourist attraction, he added.

The mayors found humor in one example of lacking coordination — the federal government's retention of a separate fire department for the Naval Postgraduate School.

Salinas Mayor Styles commented: "Only the federal government would be able to afford that. Clearly we need a new model for how to do things. Maybe next time someone would have the sense to say, 'We can contract out for these fire services.'"

Albert said his city has offered to provide fire service at a cost, but no deal has been struck. The Monterey mayor noted that the city handles fire service for the Presidio of Monterey, also federal property.

Mary Condry takes helm of CRA

By KRISTI BELCAMINO

MARY CONDRY, the newly elected president of the Carmel Residents Association, plans to continue the CRA's mission to protect "residential values" and the environment.

Mary Condry

"I would very much love to help build a consensus in this fine village toward maintaining its unique character," said Condry.

The CRA boasts over 500 dues-paying members in a town of roughly 4,200 permanent residents.

Condry plans to continue the path that outgoing president Linda Anderson has trodden.

"Of course, Linda Anderson is a person whose shoes I could never fill," said Condry.

But Anderson has confidence in Condry's ability.

"Mary has proved herself to be an outstanding leader and organizer," said Anderson. "She is a great asset to the association."

Condry is active in Project St. Bernard; she regularly volunteers at the First Murphy Welcome Center and the Friends of the Sea Otter retail shop and she sings in the Carmel Mission choir.

In addition, she has played an active role in many CRA events — the monthly beach cleanup, Chili Fiesta, library fund-raiser with Charles Schulz and the August tennis tournament and beach picnic. For the past year, she has co-chaired the CRA Dines Out Committee.

Condry and her husband, Bob, moved to Carmel in 1993. Before that, she was a travel agent in the Chicago area, packaging and leading domestic and international tours. She now serves as an independent contractor for Peninsula destination management companies.

Other newly elected CRA officers include Howard Skidmore, vice president; Connie Wright, secretary; and Lou Ungaretti, treasurer.

many times before!

See, old Ralph was thoroughly enjoying himself on a United Airlines flight when wet blanket flight attendants refused him a drink. Make that ANOTHER drink. Make that his seve ... well, never mind.

SO Ralph did the traditional thing we all do in such circumstances — he defecated on the food cart!

But apparently they don't allow that any more. (Who knew?) I ask you, where have all our freedoms gone?

FURTHER EROSION ... Monterey's Barbara Daynes forwards this from Newsweek:

"Brfxccxxmnpccclllmmnprxllll6" is the name of a 5-year-old Swedish child, which his parents say is pronounced "Albin."

BUT a lower court and an appeals court in Stockholm both ruled that the name was "unacceptable."

Why in the name of Volvo is it "unacceptable?" I personally think it's catchy!

TOO hard for others to figure out how to pronounce it? Nonsense. Just sound it out. Comes out "Albin" every time!

ONWARD ... Unless something untoward has happened since this spellbinder was written on Tuesday, the new Stokes Adobe restaurant in Monterey is now open!

We assume it opened as scheduled Wednesday night, and is now serving lunch and dinner on a daily basis.

OWNED and operated by Kirk and Dorothea Probasco, the restaurant is located appropriately in the 163-year-old Stokes adobe at Hartnell and Polk in downtown Monterey.

The building is most famous, in a culinary sense, for having housed the justly famous Gallatin's restaurant from 1949 to 1981.

SINCE then, in comparatively rapid succession, it has been the home of such fleeting eateries as an attempted Gallatin's clone (not with the original Gallatin's ownership), The Old House (Florida owners), Bindel's, and two Mexican restaurants —

Compadres and, most recently, Supremo.

The new Stokes Adobe restaurant features country Mediterranean cuisine with entrees like Roast Duck Breast, Seared Hanger Steak, Chicken Under a Brick (?), Soft Shell Crab Risotto, Braised Vegetable Napoleon, etc.

SERVING hours for lunch are 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. EVERY day, and for dinner, 5:30 to 10 p.m. Sundays through Thursdays ('til 10:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays).

LASTLY ... What greater four-bagger has any man ever achieved than that enjoyed by the San Francisco Chronicle's great Herb Caen the last few weeks?

First, he turns 80. Second, he receives a special Pulitzer Prize. Third, he gets married.

AND finally, fourth, his beloved city names a three-and-a-half-mile promenade after him! It will be dedicated this Friday at noon.

There's a down side (which Herb characteristically minimizes) — he has been diagnosed with inoperable lung cancer.

THE GOOD things, though, couldn't happen to a nicer, more deserving guy.

be changed because Lincoln is lower than Dolores," he said. "So we need to deal with that."

Another big change the club has agreed to overtake is filling in the pond that attracts mosquitoes and people trying to take a bath, according to residents at last week's council meeting.

Poole said she was extremely pleased with the city, its residents and the club in their efforts "to keep Carmel beautiful."

Contributing to the club's effort to finance the project are several anonymous donors who have offered "very nice donations" during the past week, Poole said.

"We hope to get a whole bunch more," she said.

Contributing to the design effort are two landscape designers who wish to remain nameless until the project is further under way.

The only design plans that Poole would confirm were the choice to keep plants and shrubs low to facilitate police surveillance and the agreement with Ralph Morgan, a neighbor, to create a passageway across his courtyard into the west end of the park.

Briefly Speaking

Wednesday: Herb lecture scheduled in Monterey

A LECTURE on herb horticulture will be presented by Craig Pierce of Briarwood Nursery in San Martin at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the History Auditorium of the Maritime Museum, located at 1 Portola Plaza in Monterey.

Pierce's nursery, one of the three large herb nurseries on the Central Coast, carries more than 135 species of herbs — those suitable for our local climate.

The lecture is sponsored by the Historic Garden League.

More information: 626-0740.

Wednesday: NATO's future to be explored in lecture

THE U.S. and the future of NATO is the topic of a World Affairs Council of the Monterey Bay Area lecture to be given at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

It will be held at the Irvine Auditorium, McCone Building, Monterey Institute of International Studies, located at Pierce and Jefferson in Monterey.

Speaker Catherine McArdle Kelleher was formerly a staff member with the National Security Council during the Carter Administration.

More information: 626-1813.

VOTING

invited to visit Robinson's classroom by one of her students, Christian Pollock, and his mother, Michelle.

Anchundo agreed.

He first asked the class if they knew what "voting" meant.

"If I had your parent's permission and I could take you to see the movie Dragonheart or up to Santa Cruz, who would want to go to Dragonheart?" he asked.

Two students raised their hands.

"Who would want to go to Santa Cruz?"

The rest of the students waved their hands enthusiastically.

"This class wants to go to Santa Cruz. You just made a decision," Anchundo told the class. "That's what elections are all about — you making a decision."

He told the students that even though they can't officially vote until they are 18, they still will make decisions.

"Every day you make a choice or decision — on what to wear, what hat to wear, how to comb your hair ... there are so many decisions you make day in and day out," he told them.

Anchundo explained that voting is a privilege that not all countries have. He pleaded with the students to take advantage of it when they are eligible.

"One of our most precious privileges is the right to vote," he said. "Please, as you get older, please recognize how precious this right is."

Benefit Assessment District stands for BAD — and it is

■ Viewpoint: Two-thirds of the funds collected for the proposed assessments for the Carmel Basin Flood Control Zone would be paid by property owners who live outside of the 100-year floodplain.

By ILEENE M. CRANE-FRANKS
Treasurer/Coordinator

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of monthly columns authored by the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association about issues of significance in the valley. The views expressed in this column are those of the CVPOA board.)

OUR ANCESTORS would be laughing uncontrollably at us! "Any fool knows," they would manage to gasp out between loud guffaws, "if you build your house too close to the river, sooner or later you are going to be flooded!"

All right. We do know that. Truly we do. That's why the dear Lord created flood insurance, and why those of us who insist on living next to the Carmel River carry it. We do what we can to buffer ourselves from the ravages of Mother Nature on our lifestyles and our pocketbooks.

In our zest for control, we even begin to believe we can "manage" her waters, which leads to the conviction that someone should be responsible for preventing this river from flooding. In this day and age, technology should give us the tools to stop this river from changing courses and make it static! (Wait — isn't that what they did to the L.A. River?)

Some of us have gone a step further.

The Monterey County Water Resources Agency (who?!), at the urging of a group of river dwellers, has created a Benefit Assessment District (herein called "BAD") to raise funds. If we will only bulldoze the river channel, plant willows, remove willows, build levees, demolish levees, etc., we will have done our share in preventing the next flood disaster.

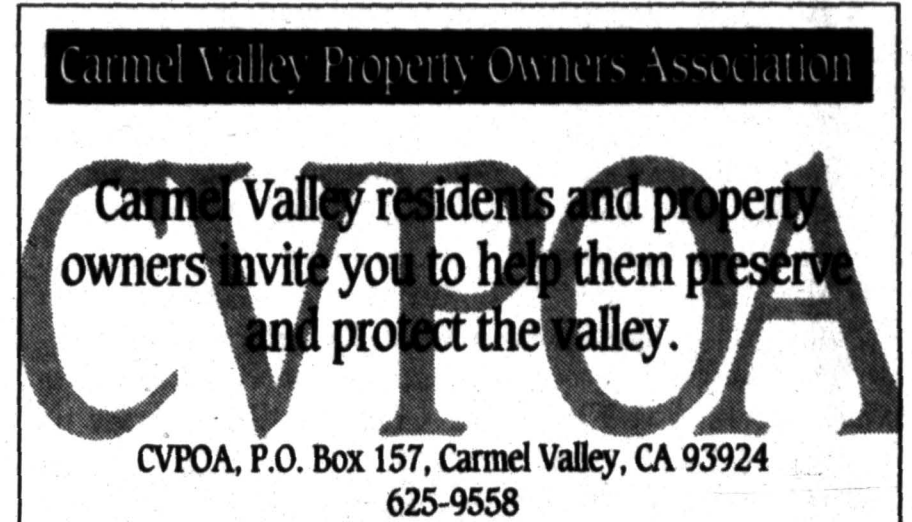

BAD money will save us all the next time the heavens open up and spill on us!

BAD money will pay for projects and improvements with such significant, yet meaningless titles as "Alert Flood Warning System," "Floodplain Management/Drainage Planning" and "Permitting Matters," as well as "River Channel Maintenance."

What is not clear is what ever happened to neighborhood watches on the rising river. I'm not quite sure what

Above the Bottom Line

By JAMES P. CALANDRA, CPA

Money you earned prior to May 7 is Uncle Sam's

THE FIRST day of summer will be upon us next week, and there's no better time to take stock of what's ahead on the tax front. Here's a look:

■ The Tax Foundation recently announced that May 7 was Tax Freedom Day for 1996. That's the date on which the average American taxpayer had earned enough money to pay all his or her federal, state, and local taxes for 1996.

■ The Internal Revenue Service will begin testing a new tax collection program this summer. The IRS will be using law firms and debt collection agencies to contact certain taxpayers who owe back taxes. Contacts will be made by phone or mail, not in person.

■ IRS interest rates dropped for the second quarter of 1996 (April through June). The IRS will assess 8 percent interest on tax underpayments, and it will pay 7 percent interest on tax overpayments.

■ 1996 per diem rates have been set for lodging, meals, and incidental expenses incurred by employees while away from home on business. The rates will remain the same as 1995 per diem rates; however, additional localities have been added to the high-cost list. The 1996 list is available in IRS Publication 1542.

■ Also unchanged for '96 are the depreciation limits for business automobiles first placed in service this year. The limits are reviewed annually and changed if inflation has been high enough. As in 1995, the 1996 limits will be:

- ✓ First tax year — $3,060
- ✓ Second tax year — $4,900
- ✓ Third tax year — $2,950
- ✓ Each succeeding year — $1,775.

■ The IRS is still hoping to perform some statistical audits. Its Tax Compliance Measurement Program (TCMP) audits were postponed indefinitely because of budget considerations.

Now the IRS indicates that it would like to do audits of a smaller sampling of tax returns in order to obtain "at least some of the benefits that the postponed TCMP study was designed to achieve."

It's estimated that the sample size for this scaled-down audit program would be 34,000 tax returns.

What can you do to keep the tax man from inheriting your estate?

You've taken care of your income taxes for another year, but have you thought about estate taxes? With rates of up to 55 percent, estate taxes can take a far bigger bite than any year's income taxes.

But it doesn't have to be that way. With proper planning, you can minimize the impact of estate taxes, leaving more of your hard-earned estate to the people you choose.

And estate planning doesn't just minimize taxes. It can provide for management of your affairs if you become incapacitated, specify who would take care of your children if you die prematurely, or help ensure a smooth transition of your family business.

Because the first $600,000 of your estate is exempt from taxes, you may think that estate planning need not be a concern. But don't overlook the appreciation in the value of your home, the value of any life insurance policies you own, and the value of your IRA and other retirement plans.

All of these are included and can boost the amount of your estate over $600,000 and into the taxable range.

There are a number of techniques available to minimize or eliminate taxes, starting with a basic will and including an annual gift program, a variety of trusts for specialized purposes, and even more sophisticated techniques for family business owners.

Surveys show that most Americans ignore estate planning, with an alarming number lacking even a simple will. But like most things, the earlier you start, the easier it is to achieve your objectives. And even if you already have a will or an estate plan, don't forget to update it as your financial and personal circumstances change and as tax law changes.

Now is the ideal time to undertake estate planning or to review your existing plan. You have the advantage of having just assembled your tax and financial information for income tax purposes.

Host for naval officers sought

CARMEL MAYOR Ken White is looking for a volunteer from the City of Carmel to host naval officers visiting the Monterey Peninsula.

In an effort to attract more Navy ships to the bay, White has joined forces with the Monterey Peninsula Council of the Navy League of the United States to locate a volunteer who is willing to participate in an activity program.

"This will involve greeting and hosting crews from naval ships," White said.

According to the league, the number of Navy ships visiting the Peninsula has dwindled during the past few years because of a lack of local involvement and interaction with naval officers.

In a letter to White, Robert Jacques of the league said, "We are seeing fewer and fewer ships choosing to stop here because they feel more welcome in other ports along the coast." More information: 624-2781.

'WOOFSTOCK '96'

SPCA to celebrate birthday Saturday

TUNE IN, turn on and go fetch. The SPCA of Monterey County will celebrate its 91st birthday by staging a free "Woofstock '96" from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the SPCA on Highway 68 across from Laguna Seca Raceway.

In keeping with the 1960s theme, the first 300 dogs arriving at Woofstock will receive tie-dyed bandanas; children may bring T-shirts to do their own tie-dyeing.

Other highlights of Woofstock, which is in part sponsored by The Pine Cone and Monterey Times, include:

- Booths featuring pet products and information;
- Lunch and snacks courtesy of the Granary Market;
- Drawings, games and demonstrations; and
- A Household Cat Show.

All dogs should be on leashes, and cats should remain in carriers.

THINK BEFORE YOU ADOPT

The SPCA of Monterey County is always trying to find ways to bring people and pets together, but sometimes we can honestly say, please, don't adopt an animal. You may think that sounds odd, coming from a humane society that focuses time and money on adoptions for shelter animals, but not a day goes by when we meet an animal surrendered by an owner who made the decision to take in an animal when the situation wasn't right, such as a landlord not allowing pets or family members disagreeing with the choice of a pet. Animals are also surrendered when people cannot afford simple veterinary care.

The SPCA suggests you consider these questions before getting an animal:

1. Can I have pets where I live?
2. Do I have time for a pet?
3. Can I afford to feed and care for a pet?
4. Do other members of my family want a pet?

We make a donation to The SPCA the first time you use our service.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Community policing programs are spreading in U.S. neighborhoods, and senior citizens are joining in. In such programs, police departments invite residents of all ages to fight crime by identifying problems and helping to shape police strategies. One program, called Triad, focuses on concerns of the elderly. Designed by national organizations of police chiefs, sheriffs and the elderly, the purpose is to pinpoint what local services would be effective in preventing crime and teaching seniors to avoid becoming victims. Also, police are trained in how to communicate with senior citizens and deal with their concerns.

Edith Spivack began working in New York City's legal department in 1934. When she retired at age 85 after 61 years, she was the city's longest-serving employee and its star lawyer in litigating delinquent property taxes. She is credited with winning payment of many millions to the city, $93 million from Penn Central Railroad alone in the 1970s.

Connors, Mac make Challenge return

PHOTOS/COIL THOMPSON

Andres Gomez, Yannick Noah fill out '96 singles lineup

By DOUG THOMPSON

JIMMY CONNORS will have his work cut out for him if he plans on defending his title at The Challenge, next week's stop on the Nuveen Champions Tour for the men's over-35 professional tennis circuit.

That's because Connors, who downed John McEnroe in last year's finale, confronts 1990 French Open champion Andres Gomez in his first singles match at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 22 on the clay court of the Beach and Tennis Club in Pebble Beach.

Gomez, 36, is the hottest player on the circuit, winning three of the last four events, including a 6-3, 7-6 victory over John Lloyd in the finals of the Washington, D.C.-based Corel Champions event. He has replaced Connors as the leader in the tour's points standings, the first player other than Connors to hold that position in the three-year, 26-event history of the circuit.

'90 was banner year

Gomez's greatest triumph came on the clay courts at Roland Garros six years ago when he captured the French Open with a four-set triumph over Andre Agassi. The six-foot, four-inch native and resident of Ecuador finished

'THE CHALLENGE' Schedule of Matches
THURSDAY, JUNE 20 Play begins at 1 p.m. ■ Johan Kriek/Dick Stockton vs. Bob Lutz/Roscoe Tanner ■ Gene Mayer/Hank Pfister vs. Eddie Dibbs/Mel Purcell	SATURDAY, JUNE 22 Play begins at 11 a.m. ■ Jimmy Connors vs. Andres Gomez ■ Doubles championships match
FRIDAY, JUNE 21 Play begins at 1 p.m. ■ Doubles third-place match ■ John McEnroe vs. Yannick Noah	SUNDAY, JUNE 23 Play begins at 11 a.m. ■ Singles third-place match ■ Singles championship match (Friday's winner vs. Saturday's winner)

that year ranked as the No. 4 player in the world.

But Connors — a 7-6 (7-5), 6-4 winner over McEnroe in The Challenge's highly entertaining 1995 championship match — still has the edge over Gomez in head-to-head competition. When the two met in the Coopers & Lybrand Champions event at Riviera Country Club in Los Angeles in April, Connors prevailed 6-3, 1-6, 6-3.

On the Nuveen circuit, the two have met five times with Connors holding a 3-2 advantage. Overall, Gomez has won just three of the 16 times they've played.

Connors, 43, won 11 of the first 12 events on the Nuveen Tour, but has taken only three of the past eight events. Connors will seek to gain a measure of momentum as he plays in this week's Big Bear Champions at the New Albany Country Club in Columbus, Ohio.

McEnroe vs. Noah

And if Connors should get by Gomez, either McEnroe or Yannick Noah, the flamboyant Frenchman, will be waiting for him in the finals.

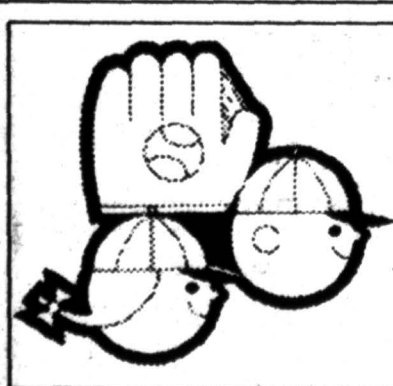

McEnroe, 37, who subdued Bjorn Borg in his first match at last year's Challenge before falling to Connors in the finale, will go up against Noah at 1 p.m. Friday, June 21.

Noah, who just turned 36, is the youngest player in the field and the lone right-hander. He is making his debut on the Champions Tour this weekend in Ohio.

In his career, McEnroe holds a 4-0 advantage over Noah.

Sunday's final, pitting the winners of the Friday and Saturday singles matches, is scheduled to begin approximately 30 minutes after the 11 a.m. consolation match is completed.

CHALLENGE NOTES: The total purse is $325,000, with the singles winner taking home $150,000. The Kinship Center, a Monterey-based nonprofit agency that has been providing foster care and adoption services for more than 12 years, will be this year's charity beneficiary for The Challenge, which is sponsored by Quality Inns. ABC will return for the '96 event, and will televise both the Connors-Gomez match on Saturday and the finals on Sunday. Plenty of tickets are still available for all four days, which includes Thursday's (June 20) Kid's Day Clinic ($25), open to juniors under the age of 18, and Friday's Inglenook 35 and Over Clinic ($45). Also on Friday, a Ladies' Day package is available, featuring a luncheon, a fashion show and a ticket to Friday's matches. In addition, several "Courtside Box Packages," ranging in prices from $120 to $1,100, are still available. Ample individual day tickets (Thursday $18, Friday-Saturday $35, Sunday $40) can still be purchased, according to event organizers. Information regarding box seats, clinics and all ticket packages can be obtained by calling 642-0141. "Center Court" at the Beach & Tennis Club can hold 4,500 spectators. The stands were packed for last year's final day when Connors and McEnroe squared off.

Carmel Youth Baseball

By PAT LITTLE

Closing Ceremonies to bring down curtain on '96 season

IF YOU enjoyed Carmel Youth Baseball's opening day fanfare a couple of months ago, be sure to join Carmel's baseball families at Larson Field on Saturday for the close of the '96 season.

Highlighting the afternoon will be a parents' tournament and a home-run derby. This year's top teams and all-star players will be announced at the ceremonies.

From the Girls' Major Softball Division, the Carmel Stamp & Coin team will receive special recognition for capturing the tri-city divisional championship.

Games begin at noon Saturday and run throughout the afternoon, with the barbecue grills going strong from 3 to 6 p.m. The official ceremonies are set for 5 p.m.

Carmel will play host to several post-season games in the weeks to come. Watch for schedules posted at Larson Field.

■ GIRLS' MAJOR SOFTBALL (ages 13-14): Carmel Stamp & Coin Pitbulls soundly defeated the Toro Park Angels 17-3 on May 28. Christy Olow pitched six innings, limiting the Angels to just two hits. SS Amanda Phillips and 2B Emily Moss played heads-up defense. Valentina Valdez homered over the LF fence; Jahre Carver doubled twice with three RBIs, and Katie May recorded three RBIs. Sarita Ray, Michelle Jensen, Stephanie Quinn and Olow played key roles in a second-inning display of great bunting.

The Pitbulls then extended their season record to 12-3 with an 11-4 win over the Monterey Police. Amanda Phillips went 3-for-3 with four RBIs and one double to lead Carmel's offense. P Christy Olow went the distance, allowing only four hits, striking out eight and walking three. Angela Boyd had two fine catches in RF. Katie May, Stephanie Quinn and Valentina Valdez were formidable and flawless with their defense.

The Pitbulls' playoff run will begin on Sunday at Toro Park, and we wish them good luck!

■ GIRLS' ROOKIE SOFTBALL (ages 9-10): Carmel's Neill Engineers put up back-to-back five-run innings as it won its June 3 game with Carmel Glass, 10-2. Tyler Moran and Larissa Lostrom were superb on the mound for Neill. Christianna Killet (CG) walloped a line-drive to LF, while Cassie Bettencourt and Heather Lightfoot scored their team's only two runs of the game in the third inning.

■ GIRLS' MINOR SOFTBALL (ages 11-12): The Carmel Yellow Brick Road Jaguars turned in their best game of the season on May 30 when they scored a 5-3 victory over the Monterey Quakes. The Jaguars busted open a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning with three runs. Jaguar individual highlights: Chelsea Campbell was 3-for-3 with two doubles; Brianna Campbell-Ford tripled and doubled; Morgan Sellers doubled; and Anna Wainscott, Thalia Tardivet, Christina Valdez and Morgan Sellers each singled. The Jaguar infield played flawlessly, posting 13 outs. 1B Krista

Youth soccer camp starts Monday

THE YMCA will offer a series of soccer camps for youths 5 through 18 beginning Monday at Carmel Middle School.

Camp goals include learning new skills, self-confidence and good sportsmanship. Offensive and defensive principles are stressed, as well as dribbling, passing and receiving ground/air balls.

More information: 373-4167.

YOUTH BASEBALL

Towle made 10 putouts at first. Tara Chandler went the distance on the mound as she pitched six innings, gave up just two walks, six hits and three runs.

PONY DIV. (ages 13-14): Jeff McGowan's two-run single capped a four-run rally as the White Sox staged a dramatic comeback to overcome the Red Sox, 7-6, May 29. McGowan's clutch line-drive hit came with two outs. Four players had doubles in the game — Chris Foudy and Ryan Terry for the White Sox, Andrew Jones and Dean Gibson for the Red Sox. C Brent Fogg threw to 3B for an out. Red Sox fielders Taylor Masten, Harry Heneks and Ross Saroyan all came up with big assists. White Sox C Ryan Terry caught a fly for a third out. White Sox SS Jeremy Peacher was responsible for two outs in the top of the seventh to keep his team within striking distance...

Two-base hits were the order of the day as the Giants defeated the White Sox 10-8 on June 1. Walt Ross, who had two doubles and two RBIs, and Jesse Kovacs (one double) led the Giants' hit parade, while Chris Foudy, Sal Buffo and Ryan Terry each had two-base hits for the Sox. CF Justin Travaille made a phenomenal line-drive catch to rob the Giants' Matt Hale. Sox SS Spencer Reade stole a hit away from Evan Parker. C Ryan Terry's throw to P Foudy nailed the Giants' Corey Wood at the plate. The Giants were helped by some dazzling defense of their own: 1B Walt Ross, RF Evan Parker and 3B Jez Munyer came up big in the field...

Pitchers Will Ross and Jesse Kovacs combined on a one-hitter as the Giants grabbed a 5-3 win over the Yankees on June 3. LF Jez Munyer, 3B Matt Hale and 2B Pat Greco turned in staunch defensive play behind the moundsmen. Nathan Rede had the lone hit, a single, for Yankees. Will Ross drilled a double for the Giants. P Sean O'Campo's throw to 1B Brian Mahoney picked off a Giants' runner. 3B Rede stopped a hard-hit shot and threw to Greco for an out...

The Giants erupted for six seventh-inning runs en route to a 9-1 win over the Dodgers last Saturday morning. Jesse Kovacs walked one and fanned 11 to thwart the Dodgers' attack. Jon Burns (D) did have a double, as did the Giants' Matt Hale. 1B Rhett Petit (G) made a stupendous line-drive catch. Dodger fielding stars: 3B Daniel Drewien threw to C Matt Grugel for an out, and Grugel and 1B John Lyons teamed up to pick off a runner...

The White Sox wiped out an early four-run Yankee lead and, buoyed by a seven-run second inning, registered a 9-5 triumph last Saturday. Jeremy Peacher, Jeff McGowan, Isaac Siegal, Justin Gooden and Justin Travaille paced the Sox's hitting attack. McGowan had two of his team's RBIs. Nathan Roddick and Nathan Rede each banged out two hits, while Rede knocked in four runs for the Yankees. Brian Mahoney doubled, and Zack Newhouse and Roger Balyon each singled. In the field, 2B Roddick threw to SS Pat Thomas, who relayed the ball to 1B Mahoney for a DP. CF Travaille hauled in two fly balls.

The Yankees, champions of the Pony Division's first half, will meet up with the Giants, second-half champs, in a title game at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Pony Field on the Carmel Middle School campus.

MUSTANG DIV. (ages 9-10): Austin Kettle's first-inning single gave the Diamond Dogs a lead they never relinquished in their June 5 game with Mission Ranch. Morgan Zeale's double brought in Noah McCormack and Bill Churchill for two more runs as the 'Dogs scored a 6-2 triumph. MR's Andy Abraham and Reagan Pollack drilled doubles. MR catcher Jaimie Puccinelli hauled in a high foul for an out. Colin Zeale stole home to score for DD. MR rover Jeff Foudy's smooth throw to 1B Colin Ling kept the 'Dogs scoreless in the fifth...

Charlie Crisan, who pitched three shutout innings, and Ross Tiernan each had doubles to key a four-run first-inning and Topline Toys cruised to a 9-1 victory over the Diamond Dogs last Saturday morning. The lone DD run was scored by Clint Walker, who stole three bases as a designated runner for Tim Jaconette, who was plunked by a pitch. RF Bill Churchill's fine catch in the first prevented even further scoring by TLT...

Mission Ranch broke open a close game in the sixth inning when it scored four times and went on to register a 9-4 triumph over Tri-Cal last Saturday. Top hitters for TC were Dylan Roddick, Dave Garrison and Jonathan Copsey. Leading MR at bat were Jaimie Puccinelli, Jeff Foudy and Reagan Pollack. While on the mound, Roddick snared a wicked line drive...

Nathan Canepa, Kyle Johnson and Jack Britton combined to limit Remax to four runs over six innings to help Payless chalk up a 6-4 win last Saturday afternoon. At the plate, Payless was led by Frankie Ortega, who doubled and scored a run, Chris Hill-Fertal, Kyle Green and Sean Geiger. Remax's Matthew Feldberg ripped a base hit to pace the Remax attack. Ben Baysinger turned in three strong innings on the mound for Remax, while teammate Aaron Turner chipped in with a nice play in the field...

Kyle Breuleux continued to belt the ball around the park as he had two homers to lead Lemos 76 to an 8-5 victory over On The Beach last week. Breuleux also was outstanding on the mound, shutting down OTB in his three-inning stint. L76 highlights: Max Rieser doubled, and Andrew Dahl produced two singles, while John Puccinelli made a great catch of a fly ball to end an inning. OTB highlights: Adam Canepa and Luke Perkins pulled off an excellent double play...

Kenny Kleinkopf (Copies By The Sea) and Erik Van Valkenburgh (New Masters Gallery) hit home runs in a high-scoring affair last Saturday won by Copies 10-4. NMG's Brett George doubled in two runs. LF Michael Hill and 3B Jon Wilson turned in some crisp defense for NMG.

New Masters Gallery turned back the Blacksox in an old-fashioned pitchers' duel last Thursday evening, 4-2. Winning pitcher Eric Shepner threw four scoreless innings, giving up only one hit. Erik Van Valkenburgh was the hitting star, as he tagged two doubles and drove in two runs. More help came off the bat of Zack Baysinger, who cracked his sixth home run of the season.

Accolades all around

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club, three cheers with appreciative thanks to Mayor Ken White and members of the Carmel City Council for their unanimous approval of our club's resolution "to pursue the preservation, protection and enhancement of Piccadilly Park!"

May I also take this opportunity to thank so many whose enthusiastic support was expressed at the city council meeting, including representatives from the following organizations:

- Carmel Open Space Task Force
- Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District
- Carmel Residents Association
- California Native Plant Society
- Mission Trail Park Advisory Committee
- Carmel Forest and Beach Commission
- Big Sur Land Trust.

Working with our council, the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club will ensure that our resolution materializes into a Piccadilly Park of which everyone may be proud!

We welcome suggestions and will gratefully receive contributions to our not-for-profit Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club, P.O. Box 1972, Carmel 93921.

Isabel A. Crossen, President
Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club

Smell the flowers

Dear Editor:

*Oh ring out, ye silver bells,
And dance with glee, ye cockle shells!
The Marys quite contrary
(Carmel's club extraordinary)
Have rescued our park, Piccadilly!*

Mayor Ken White agrees with the people's desire to keep the little green oasis.

Two of the park's neighbors have made magnanimous offers: Ralph Morgan will create a pathway to Lincoln Street, whereas The Mitchell Group will add a second access to Ocean Avenue. A third neighbor, Jody LeTowt, who had presented an alternative, and commercial, use for Piccadilly Park, was most gracious about accepting the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club's solution.

Perry Newberry would be proud!

For goodness sake, let the rest of us in this community contribute everything we are able in support of the "pretty maids all in a row": money, muscle, time.

Then we all can relax on those benches and "smell the flowers."

Betty Hoag McGlynn, Carmel

Preserving the park

Dear Editor:

The decision by the Carmel City Council on June 4 to preserve and enhance Piccadilly Park as proposed by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club was a great victory for the citizens and tourists alike.

It would have been a tragedy to replace much of that property with yet another shopping mall.

But credit should be given where due. The advocates for the change in use had been Jody LeTowt, one of the owners of the adjacent property, and Jere Kersnar, city administrator.

Without the stimulus of that proposal, the movement to redesign and improve the rear portion of the park might not have been launched, at least at present.

Sincere thanks are due, all around!

Thomas O. Stratton, Carmel

Tired of paying again . . .

Dear Editor:

The creation of a new Assessment District by the Monterey County Water Resources Agency is just another layer of bureaucracy and new money for projects already handled by other agencies.

The Soil Conservation Service (SCS), the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and Monterey County Flood Control has all of the matters this is addressing as its responsibilities. MPWMD budgeted money for alert systems, flood control (erosion control), River channel maintenance, etc.

If 25 percent of the voters in this assessment district protest this zone, new amounts of wasted money will not be created. I am tired of paying for the same thing over and over again.

Robert C. Zobel, Carmel Valley

Design study is bunk

Dear Editor:

The article (Pine Cone, June 6) about funding for a consultant to help the Carmel Planning Commission study the residential design guidelines was of particular interest to us in the architectural and building community.

I have always believed that since the reign of Ken White, Carmel's planning commissions have been long on design review, and short on planning. Planners at the Carmel Planning Department have told me that four years ago, 80 percent of their time was spent on planning and 20 percent on design review. Now that formula is reversed.

Yes, there has been an increase of building applications, but it is my feeling that the mood around city hall is that planning is a secondary role for commissioners. So it comes as no surprise that when they finally have a chance to do some planning, they admit they don't know how!

Actually, the reason they used for wanting to hire a consultant is that since there are so many diverse groups in Carmel, an objective opinion is needed to get the job done.

A FATHER'S DAY TRIBUTE

With Father's Day this Sunday, it's time to remember all the dads. And when Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, called in earlier this week, it was clear he was thinking of his father — former longtime State Sen. Fred Farr (pictured at right). On the subject of his dad, Sam (at left) said: "My father is an inspiration to me as a person who really cares about our community and its people. He loves everybody, remembers everything about everyone he ever met and is always helping others. My father teaches us that our 'quality of life' is dependent on caring for each other. As a son, I now see age taking his eyesight and hearing, but not his vision and voice."

Councilperson Paula Hazdovac thinks this is bunk, and I have to agree! I would rather take my chances with the worst planning commission than some person out of Des Moines, Decatur, or wherever consultants come from. They would arrive here, know nothing of our history, our culture, or our politics and try to settle this hypothetical bickering.

As for being objective, if the city is signing the paycheck, how objective can they be?

Councilperson Barbara Livingston, of course, is all in favor of the idea. She is right about one thing, however. The $20,000 asked for will most likely climb to more than $50,000. Actually, when a politician says something will cost 50 something they usually mean 100 something! Just look at the cost of the Sunset EIR and you get my drift.

Let me make a simple suggestion: Why don't we form a sub-committee made up of two members of the Carmel Planning Commission, a member of the Carmel Beach and Forest Commission, a staff member (with the water moratorium they should have lots of time), a representative of the architectural and building community and a member of the real estate community.

Then hold a number of public hearings, draft a proposal and send it to the planning commission for its advice and consent. Once approved, it goes to the city council.

Then, and only then, will we have government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

And it won't cost us a cent!

Chris Tescher, Carmel

Tomcat on the loose

Dear Editor:

I am looking for the owners of a black tomcat, who has a white stripe along the right side of his nose, white mittens, all white hind legs, a black spot on the heel and wears a pink collar.

You probably live somewhere between San Carlos and Lincoln and Eighth and Ninth, or even beyond for your cat gets around and has more offspring in these parts than I care to estimate.

Here alone in the corner of Dolores and Eighth, I just spotted a new litter of about five that takes after him. I have been feeding their little wild black mother for six weeks now.

Of the fall '95 litter, two of his daughters survived ($53 each, SPCA). The spring '95 litter had one surviving son ($75, Dr. Petkus).

So, you can see, by virtue of you not having your cat fixed and letting him howl and roam freely around the neighborhood is costing me a lot of money, time and effort.

So, please, get this cat over to the SPCA and let's have no more of this irresponsibility. Restitution would be quite welcome as well.

'Go for the Gold' — Summer program to start

THE HARRISON Memorial Library's Park Branch Summer Reading Program is just two weeks away from starting, and children of all ages are encouraged to participate.

This year's theme is "Go for the Gold — Win with Reading." Participants can read their way to a bronze, silver or gold medal by reading and keeping track of the time read.

Along the way, there will be additional reading incentives as children accumulate reading minutes. Every Wednesday, June 26 through Aug. 7 at 10:30 a.m., there will be a special program. These will include storytellers, sports and science demonstrations and more!

A special party at the Library with a drawing for great prizes, such as tickets to Paramount's Great America, San Francisco Giants baseball games, CD's, computer games and more will be held on the final day of the program.

The Summer Reading Program enables children to keep up or progress with their reading skills while having fun and winning prizes. Come and register beginning Tuesday at the Library's Park Branch, Mission and Sixth.

Funds for the Summer Reading Program have been generously donated by Carmel Public Library Foundation member Cindy Murphy. More information: 624-4664.

Review of the Week: The Library's featured book reviewer this week is Sarah Alcocer, a fifth-grade student at Junipero Serra School. Sarah and her class regularly attend the Library's Booktalk Program.

Susan Jones, children's librarian, visits fourth- and fifth-grade classes at Junipero Serra School, Carmel River School, All Saints' Episcopal Day School and Robert Louis Stevenson Lower School. During her visits, she reads excerpts from popular children's books, but doesn't reveal the ending. Students are then encouraged to visit the library and check out books featured in the talk.

Following is Sarah's review:

I love reading books. One book I read that Mrs. Jones talked about is Mandy by Julie Edwards. It's about a little girl named Mandy, who lives in an orphanage.

She is treated very nice. After a while she feels something is missing, and she wants a place of her own!

There is a big brick wall behind the orphanage. Nobody had ever been over the wall or thinking about going over the wall.

One day she decided to go over the wall! Mandy went walking around and saw nothing, but she turned around and saw a cabin with an ugly garden.

Mandy was going to keep this a secret. Mandy kept going to the garden a lot. She turned it into a beautiful cabin and a nice garden. She was so happy!

One day she got sick at the cabin and found out someone was knowing about it all along. Sorry, but you'll have to find out what happens.

As for now, I'd like to tell everyone who reads this, the Harrison Memorial Library for kids is the best!

— Sarah Alcocer

If you would like to help buy books for the library, send your tax-deductible contribution — large or small — to the Carmel Public Library Foundation, P.O. Box 2042, Carmel, Calif. 93921.

VALLEY VIEWS: Is there BAD $ in our future?

permits are required from Mother Nature to make sure her waters reach the ocean properly.

And as far as "Emergency Flood Preparedness" goes, I already know what my role will be: I expect to listen to my scanner, contact the local Red Cross shelter to see what is needed for evacuees, and wait for Mother Nature to do her thing. I found the rest of the instructions in the phone book! (Did I mention I live on a hill?)

What's gone unsaid

What is not said in the Public Notice recently mailed out to some of us could fill volumes. First and foremost: the BAD money called for in this assessment can and will be charged without your agreement or vote. It may include annual increases tied to the rate of inflation (when was the last time you saw an inflation rate drop?).

Almost half of the money collected the first year is earmarked to repay money already spent out of CSA 74 during last year's floods and not for making any changes to the river. Properties that will be charged reach from Chews Ridge to the ocean, from ridgetop to ridgetop, in Cachagua as well as Carmel Valley.

Finally, although properties outside the 100-year floodplain will only be charged half as much as those within, they will be paying around two-thirds of the total funds collected! (Not a bad day at the races, I'd say.)

Let's talk about benefits — the "B" in BAD:

■ Monterey County benefits: They get new money without calling it a tax.

■ River dwellers benefit: They get heavy equipment and new friends in their yards — saay, how will these people be able to clear the river any more than the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District staff were without signed permission of the owners?

■ Property owners outside the floodplain surely benefit: They get ...?

What about responsibility? The theory is that each drop of water which begins its descent from a ridgetop, passing over acres and acres of land nowhere near the river, gathering other little drops of water along its way, contributes to the deluge.

It's everyone's fault! If it weren't for the inefficiency of soil to absorb every last drop of rain, there would be no flood! If it weren't for the paved roads, driveways, and houses built all over the valley, the run-off would stay put. (Of course, there would be no creeks or river, either).

Leave it alone

Surprisingly enough, many property owners along the river object to this BAD money. Some are on fixed incomes; some resent the leave-you-out-of-it process that authorizes it; still others believe we should quit messing with the river and leave it alone.

Not so surprising are those naysayers whose properties lie outside the floodplain. Support and opposition has yet to be tallied, but the Monterey Taxpayers Association will attempt to do just that. Look in your mailbox at the end of the second week in June for a mailer from them. It will include a response postcard you can mail back to them with your opinion on it.

The only way to stop this BAD money from happening now is to protest (no, not like in the 60's!).

What proposed assessments will fund

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

According to the Public Notice mailed out by the Monterey County Water Resources Agency (MCWRA), the proposed assessments for the Carmel Basin Flood Control Zone will fund the following projects and improvements, "to the extent they are not funded by other agencies or zones"

- Alert flood warning system
- Emergency flood preparedness
- Flood control project planning
- Permitting matters
- Floodplain management/drainage planning
- River channel maintenance
- Assume function of CSA 74 geologic hazard abatement subzone.

More information: MCWRA at 755-4860.

The Public Notice mailed out by the county didn't say, but in order for your protest to count, you must include the following in it:

- A description of your lot sufficient to identify it, such as property address or assessors parcel number;
- Names of any co-owners and their percentage of ownership;
- A statement as to whether you reside or are registered to vote within the BAD area;
- Your residence address;
- Your objection; and
- Your signature.

Leave out any of these things and you just wasted your time because your protest is not "valid." It takes a mini-mum protest equal to 25 percent of the voters who voted in the last gubernatorial election (Einstein's theory is relatively easy...) to stop the BAD money charge, or at least to cause it to go to a vote. That's somewhere around 3,000 protests needed — more is better.

Mail your protest (or letter of support — this is still America, I believe!) to Monterey County Water Resources Agency, c/o Assessments, P.O. Box 930, Salinas 93902.

Or you can deliver your letter to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors in person. They'll all be there in Salinas at the county courthouse, holding a public hearing at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 16.

BUDGET

this time disagreements were about budget increases, not cuts.

As a good indicator of a brighter business picture and increased tourism, the city anticipates roughly $500,000 more in room, sales and property tax revenues than those projected a year ago before the adoption of the 1995-96 budget.

It had been determined at earlier budget sessions that much of the growth in the budget would be directed at increasing salaries, enlarging the city's revenue buffer (for unexpected dips in the economy) and increasing spending for repairing and improving buildings, streets and facilities.

Closer look

Here is a closer look at the council's three major decisions Tuesday:

■ Most of the controversy surrounded the decision to continue to fund the CBA's destination-marketing program, launched last fall under a similar cloud of controversy.

The council agreed to award the CBA $100,000, the same amount as last year, but a reduction from the $133,000 included in City Administrator Jere Kersnar's proposed budget.

While increased tourism is responsible for the city's improved financial standing, there is no hard evidence that out-of-town advertisement is the reason for it, although CBA officials report that promotion efforts are paying off.

During the open-microphone portion of the meeting, members of the Carmel Residents Association urged the council to discontinue funding, arguing that Carmel faces the possibility of being overrun with tourists and that the money could be channeled elsewhere.

"The recession is at an end and the town is full of tourists," said Mary Condry, CRA president.

Hazdovac, who supports the CBA marketing program, noted that the focus is on attracting "the right kind of visitor" to Carmel and on targeting tourists who will spend the night during the typically slow weekdays.

Livingston said, however, that more money has to be invested in "mitigating the impacts" of having more tourists on the streets.

She voted against the budget on the basis of her opposition to funding destination marketing.

Calling the $100,000 grant a "good compromise," Mayor

Ken White said the council will seek "hard numbers" from the CBA to determine how successful the program is.

A related controversy was whether to pay a $23,600 membership fee to the Monterey Peninsula Visitors' Center, which operates out of an office on Camino El Estero in Monterey.

Council members agreed to pay those dues, although they also arranged for the center to appear before them in July to explain the benefits of its program to the village.

Sundays again

■ The council agreed to channel $16,900 into increasing library hours at Harrison Memorial Library's main branch, at Ocean and Lincoln.

The council's intent has been to reopen the library on Sundays after having the doors closed for four years. The library board, however, will help the council determine the best way to spend the money.

"The Harrison Memorial Library needs to be kept open more," White said.

At present, the only weekend hours are from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturdays. The council did not order more hours for the Park Branch at Sixth and Mission.

Cracking down

■ The council set aside funds to increase the city's 82-person workforce by one full-time employee — a planner who would be in charge of code enforcement, among other duties.

Fire Chief Bill Hill has been in charge of code-enforcement since 1993, when a full-time code-enforcement officer was laid off during a period of deep staff cuts.

According to council members and residents, violations have gotten out of hand in recent years, particularly in the downtown. Violations include improper display of signs, unauthorized outdoor seating areas and unapproved commercial activities and uses.

Summer is generally considered the worst time for code violations, according to White. City staff will attempt to redouble its code enforcement efforts with existing staff, as it will take three months or longer to hire a new code-enforcement officer, according to Sandi Davenport, the city's financial services director.

AIRCRAFT

a result, the unit's patrol leader was ousted.

Somewhere to turn

Monterey County Sheriff's Lt. Bill Freeman encouraged residents to call him or Lt. Mike Kanalakakis with their complaints. Freeman said the sheriff's department's role is only to assist the U.S. Forest Service in removing the marijuana once it is located.

"Generally if there are low flying (aircraft) over private property, there's a reason for it," said Kanalakakis. "The aircraft is either having problems and going down or there is marijuana on the property."

But Mike Caplin, a representative of the Coast Property Owners Association, said residents have had problems with low flying aircraft when there wasn't marijuana on the property. Or tomato plants.

Residents were encouraged to call the U.S. Forest Service, the sheriff's department and the Federal Aviation Administration with questions and complaints.

In a later interview, Tony Costanza, aviation safety inspector for the FAA, said he welcomes inquiries, but his agency's role is to regulate aviation that is an "undo hazard" to person or property.

He said altitude, noise and nuisance of helicopters is not regulated by the FAA.

"This is an over-simplification," warned Costanza, but said an enforceable violation would include a helicopter flying so low it was "blowing shingles off the roof, or blowing furniture into the swimming pool. Anything less is more difficult to enforce and needs a preponderance of evidence."

Big Sur tomatoes

He agreed that helicopters are often intrusions of tranquility and privacy, but that flying over a home doesn't create an "undo hazard."

"We don't want you to stop growing tomatoes," said Farr, in an attempt to lighten the conversation. "What would an Ambrosia Burger be without a Big Sur tomato?"

Residents with concerns or complaints may call the FAA at 291-7681, the U.S. Forest Service Law Enforcement and Investigations at 805/681-2715 or the Monterey County Sheriff's Department, Monterey office at 647-7702 or in Salinas at 755-3702.

Grant gives Pac Rep ticket to ownership of Golden Bough

By CRAIG ARNOTT

IN WHAT is the largest donation of its kind on the Peninsula, Pacific Repertory Theatre recently received a $300,000 matching grant from the David and Lucile Packard Foundation for the second phase of the Golden Bough Playhouse Capital Campaign.

PRT purchased the Golden Bough Playhouse in Carmel in 1994 for $1,144,773, which included a $600,000 mortgage loan. In March of 1995, PRT opened its first season at the Golden Bough.

"The Foundation Trustees and I are pleased to be able to assist Pacific Repertory Theatre in this capital campaign project, and I know that David Packard was committed to assisting this organization," said Colburn S. Wilbur, executive director of the David and Lucile Packard Foundation.

Burning the mortgage
The grant goes toward the total campaign goal of $750,000, to pay off the mortgage and its accrued interest by May 1997.

The residual $450,000 will come from private donations within the community, and serves as the theatre company's "greatest challenge," according to Lana Weeks, PRT's managing director.

"The idea of a matching grant really requires that the community become involved with the fund raising," she told Peninsula. "It's now the community's turn to take part."

"We are really looking forward to burning our mortgage," she added with a laugh.

Incentives for potential donors include having theatre seats named in their honor or being included on the wall plaque located in the Golden Bough's foyer.

The first phase of the campaign was finished in 1994 after a nine-month campaign to save the Golden Bough Playhouse as a place of historical value to Carmel.

After success of last summer's run, Forest Theater Guild brings back 'Films in the Forest' series

By SHAUM MEHRA

BE SURE to bring a blanket.

It can get a little chilly out in the dark of night with a villain from an Alfred Hitchcock movie looming before you.

Remember, though, you won't be alone. The theater will be filled with people just as terrified as you.

Beginning June 17, the Forest Theater Guild will present its Second Annual Films in the Forest: seven weeks of classic films — from horror to romance, comedy to drama — shown under the stars in California's oldest outdoor theater.

"It's fabulous," says Fritz Renner, president of the Guild. "It's a whole different experience to watch a movie and be able to lean back and see the night sky above you."

Renner and the rest of the Guild believe they are on to something. Aside from providing the pleasure of viewing a movie outdoors, the festival helps raise needed funds.

In order to defray the costs of their annual stage productions (which will be performed on the weekends, beginning Thursday, June 13), the Guild has decided to dedicate the rest of the week toward showing classic films in the same theater. All of this year's proceeds will go toward funding the Guild's productions of the live performances of Kismet and J.B.

Four nights a week

One film will be screened each night, Monday through Thursday, starring Hollywood legends ranging from Ingrid Bergman and Jimmy Stewart to Woody Allen and Chevy Chase. The first two weeks of this year's event will feature films produced on the Monterey Peninsula. Then, during the following month, each week will be dedicated to films of a particular genre.

"All the films we show have become classics," Renner says. "There is enough variety so there will be something for everyone, no matter what your taste."

The only problem is, copyright laws prohibit the Guild from publicizing the titles of the films. The only way to find out what's playing is to call the Guild at 626-1681 or 624-2522.

To Renner, this is a small obstacle. He believes that, like last year, once the word is spread around, people will show up.

"The theater is really beautiful," he

Theater sets special shows of comedy 'Box & Cox'

AS A Father's Day event to benefit its maintenance fund, The Unicorn Theatre presents the Victorian comedy Box & Cox at noon and 2 p.m. Sunday at The Hoffman Playhouse, 320 Hoffman Ave., Monterey.

Carey Crockett, Robert Colter and Phyllis Edwards are the performers in the comedy, which lasts one hour.

Admission is $10. Information/reservations: 649-0259.

Feast will benefit Dad and Friends of the Sea Otter

FRIENDS OF the Sea Otter (FSO) is hosting an all-you-can-eat crab buffet for Father's Day, an event that benefits the local nonprofit organization, from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the Monterey Room at the Monterey Fairgrounds, 2004 Fairgrounds Road, Monterey.

FSO was founded in 1968 with the specific purpose of protecting California's sea otters.

Festivities include a live and silent auction, raffle prizes, educational activities for kids and live music.

Among the menu items are fresh steamed crab, an antipasto bar, French bread, tri-tip, beverages, dessert and a kids' menu.

Tickets are $20 for adults, $7.50 for kids 12-18; kids 11 and under are free. They are available at the FSO retail and educational Center in The Barnyard, Carmel and at the FSO administrative office at 2150 Garden Road, Monterey.

Artist remembers with nostalgia Carmel's days as an artists' colony

By SHAUM MEHRA

Dick Crispo

DICK CRISPO remembers a much different Carmel than the one that surrounds him today.

Since his days as a young boy in the 1950s, the artist has seen Carmel's evolution from a unpretentious artists' colony to the upscale tourist haven it has become today. It's a change that he feels doesn't bode well for struggling artists.

"There was a looseness and openness at that time," he tells Peninsula. "Carmel has lost the informality and charm that I came to love as a kid."

Crispo and his family moved to Carmel from Greenwich, Conn. in 1955, when his father decided to move the family produce business to the West Coast. Dick was 10 years old.

'Pretty screwy'

He remembers the day they turned their car off Highway 1 and first laid eyes on the little town they would call home.

"It was late June and it was cold and damp," he says. "I thought, 'This is pretty screwy.' And all of the buildings were really small. We all looked at each other like, 'Where in the hell are we?'"

While Dick's father built their future home in Carmel Valley, the Crispo family lived in town at the corner of Carmelo and 12th. Although he was unsure whether he liked Carmel or not, Crispo believed that since it was summer he would at least meet some kids to play with. To his dismay, he didn't find any.

"I spent that summer wandering the beaches and

Mad for Mexican munchies

MY SON Race is one of those sleek young men who surfs off Carmel Beach. During the winter months when the storm waves curl into angry onslaughts is the time he likes it best. He likes riding the edge of those monsters with his adrenaline pumping. Could there be any connection with this and his love for Mexican food?

Apron Strings

By Deborah Smith

Race adores Mexican food — the hotter the better. He even doctors up scrambled eggs, lima beans and hot dogs with a couple of shakes of Tabasco or a smear of hot salsa. His continual demand for these peppery condiments, I must confess, came even before he was born.

Strange, those peculiar pregnant cravings — the notorious 2 a.m. pickles-and-ice-cream routine that lures expectant parents into a variety of culinary capers. Luckily for me, my first two pregnancies instigated somewhat reasonable yearnings.

They say that the cravings experienced during pregnancy indicate some lack of mineral or vitamin in the mother's body, which the desired food helps to supply. Then again, maybe the baby is just exerting its already formed tastes on the mother's palate. Whatever the reason, my first pregnancy got me hankering for oranges and I just could not pass up a fruit stand.

Going into New York City in those days meant dressing up in white cotton gloves and Jackie Kennedy pillbox hats. You can imagine peeling and eating an orange was a messy affair in such garb, during which I would try to mingle nonchalantly with the Bloomingdale's crowd.

My second daughter's beginnings created a craving for cucumbers. During that nine months, my husband and I attended every wedding we could so I would get my fill of those little crustless cucumber sandwiches.

But the third time was different. I had an overwhelming desire for Mexican food. As neither our budget nor our stamina could adjust to going out for dinner very often, I learned some easy gringo methods of preparing a few traditional Mexican dishes.

Like others who enjoy cooking, I have gathered recipes over the years from various friends. The following chili comes from a United Airlines flight attendant; the tamale pie from my ex sister-in-law.

The mock chile rellenos recipe I learned from a Mexican who showed me how to prepare them. We served them at a luncheon for 60 guests after my son's christening in Honolulu.

To celebrate Race's 26th birthday I plan to prepare:

■ Tamale pie (Serves 8)

1 roll summer sausage, skinned and cubed
1 onion, diced
1 28-ounce can crushed tomatoes
1 15 and 1/4-ounce can corn, drained
1 14 and 1/2-ounce can white hominy, drained
1/2 cup yellow corn meal
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 cup pitted black olives
1 cup grated cheddar cheese

Combine onion, tomatoes, corn, hominy and corn meal and boil gently for five minutes, stirring constantly. Cool slightly before adding sausage, chili powder, olives, egg and milk. Pour into casserole and bake, covered, for 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Sprinkle cheese over the top and continue baking uncovered for another 15 minutes.

■ Chile Rellenos (Serves 8)

4 4-ounce cans whole green chiles
1/2 pound Swiss cheese
1 cup milk
3 large eggs, slightly beaten

1 cup chopped onions
1 28-ounce can crushed tomatoes

Cover bottom of a shallow casserole baking dish with a thin layer of tomatoes. Slice the cheese into finger-size pieces, placing one piece inside each chile. Lay the chiles side-by-side in casserole dish. Top with remaining tomatoes. Combine milk, eggs and onion and pour over chiles. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

■ Albino Chili (Serves 8)

1 and 1/2 pounds ground turkey
1 one-pound bag white beans
1 large onion, diced
2 yellow peppers, diced
3 cloves garlic, minced
3 tablespoons minced cilantro
1 28-ounce can crushed tomatoes
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
Oil
Chili powder, salt and pepper to taste

Soak beans in water overnight. Rinse and recover with water and boil gently until soft. Drain. Sauté turkey, onion, peppers and garlic in oil. Combine all ingredients, season and simmer 1 hour, stirring occasionally.

Crispo remembers boyhood in which he could knock on artists' doors, asking them for lessons

wondering what I was doing here," he says.

Crispo also explored the town, which offered little excitement compared to his home back east. Downtown Carmel consisted of mainly a Purity supermarket, two smaller grocery stores, a hardware store and a gas station.

But in this time spent alone, Crispo began to develop his artistic eye, as well as an appreciation for his new home.

"There were all these funny little shops," he says, "surrounded by amazing scenery. It was really beautiful. And the overall beauty hasn't changed today."

Even though Carmel was founded as an artists' colony, there were only two galleries during much of the '50s, as well as a few artists' personal studios that were open to the public.

In high school Crispo worked as a part-time framer's apprentice at the town's only art-supply store. It was there that he first became familiar with the local artists and their techniques.

"Artists like Richard Lofton, Leslie Emery and Gus Arriola would come in and I'd be framing their stuff. I'd ask them, 'Why'd you do that? Why'd you put red there, or purple there?'"

As he became more involved with oil painting, he began to feel a camaraderie with the local artists.

"I'd go knock on their doors and ask them if I could study with them," he says. "A lot of the time they'd tell me to study for a few more years and then come back."

One such artist was Abel "Buck" Warshawsky.

"This guy answered the door; he looked like Igor, or the Hunchback of Notre Dame," Crispo says. "He showed me into a room where a woman was posed in front of a huge tapestry. Warshawsky was sitting there painting her. When he was finished he came over and looked at my work. Then he started painting on it, correcting things."

"That's what Carmel has lost these days, the informality of it. Back then, because the area was so small, I could just go and knock on artists' doors."

Carmel has come a long way since the time when its artists would display their paintings in only a handful of galleries. Today, there are as many as 84 galleries within Carmel alone. And despite its reputation for being an area where artists still flourish, Crispo feels very few of the locals actually get to display their works here.

He blames this largely on the high rents gallery owners are forced to pay. Some galleries rent for as much as $20,000 per month. To stay in business they must turn over a large volume of high-priced art. Selling works by lesser-known local artists can be risky; gallery proprietors are forced to deal paintings by artists with bigger names, whose paintings are guaranteed to command an expensive price tag.

Crispo, who during the recent remodel of downtown Carmel's Mediterranean Market painted the horizontal wall-length mural behind the counter, is one of the few natives who have been able to get into the local galleries.

"I've been really lucky in that respect," he says, "but still, I've always had to take other jobs to survive here. Even though I've had a very good career in this area, it's just not enough. I don't see how an artist can afford to live here now."

Up until about 25 years ago, Crispo says, the monthly rents for many studio cottages in Carmel, and neighboring locales such as Pacific Grove, were as low as $40. And there were plenty of them. This meant that local artists didn't have to sell many paintings to feed and house themselves; they were free to pursue their artistic aspirations full time.

As the area became a haven for tourists and wealthy retirees attracted by the beautiful scenery, the price for residency soared out of control.

"Part of the reason people come here is for the artistic tradition," Crispo says. "Besides the painters, such as Armin Hansen, there were writers — Robinson Jeffers, Henry Miller — and photographers like Ansel Adams and Edward Weston. These are the people who put Carmel on the map. Now, with today's cost of living, they couldn't afford to live here."

Crispo feels Carmel should be more supportive of its local artists — not just fine artists, but performing artists as well. It is his hope to bring back the traditions that originally drew the tourists to Carmel in the first place.

"I miss the charm of that little town I drove into in 1955," he says. "I came to love that goofy little place."

■ Dick Crispo will give his first of 10 slated lectures at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Carmel Art Association, Dolores and Fifth, Carmel. The topic is "Pre-Columbian Art and Its Effect on 20th Century Mexican Art."

Gospel greets Mighty Clouds of Joy to perform locally Thursday, June 20

A "THURSDAY Night Gospel Extravaganza" featuring three-time Grammy Award winners The Mighty Clouds of Joy, The Gospel Stars, The Disciples for Christ and Brother Leroy Palmer, is set for 7:30 p.m. June 20 at San Carlos Cathedral, 550 Church St., Monterey.

The Mighty Clouds of Joy is currently ranked as the number one gospel group in the nation. It formed in 1955 and first began recording in 1960; original members Joe Ligon and Richard Wallace are still with the group.

In the 1970s, the Clouds began incorporating a contemporary R&B sound into their music, which caused an uproar among some fans of traditional gospel. When the Clouds had a number one hit on the dance charts and appeared on Soul Train, the group received reams of protest letters. But the "funkified" gospel they pioneered gradually would become accepted as a standard part of Gospel music.

The Clouds have shared stages with Marvin Gaye, Aretha Franklin, Earth, Wind & Fire, the Rolling Stones and Paul Simon.

Tickets are $15 in advance or at the door, $7 for kids 6-10 at the door only. Advance tickets are on sale at Monterey Bible Bookstore, Cymbaline Records, Bookworks, Do Re Mi, Mom's Home Cookin', The Hair Co. and Music Zone.

'Company's book brings otherwise solid production down

By MARK SHILSTONE-LAURENT

HELP! IT'S 1970 and I'm trapped inside an episode of Love: American Style!

That's how I felt at the current Monterey Peninsula College production of Company, playing through June 23 at York School Theatre.

REVIEW

The Stephen Sondheim musical is a solid enough production — direction by Nick Zanides, choreography by Laura Akard and musical direction by Stephen Tosh — but whereas this might have been interesting in 1970, it's pretty thin stuff now.

It's that plot you've seen in every situation comedy since the dawn of humankind — the single guy who is surrounded by his married friends, all of whom are trying to convince him how great marriage is. But of course, wink wink, as the play unfolds we see that although they talk a good game, these couples' relationships are anything but great.

The trademark inventive Sondheim songs are here but we need to nail George Furth for his predictable, dated and unengaging book.

In his Director's Notes about the program, Zanides concludes that "Although written 25 years ago it does not seem dated." Maybe not to some people, but it sure as heck seemed dated to me, certainly more so than A Little Night Music, which Sondheim wrote only a few years later.

Lind a standout

OK, OK, Mr. Reviewer Man, we get the point. You find the material shallow and unengaging. But what about the production itself?

Robert, the object of all the married folks' meddling, is ably portrayed by guest artist Andrew Lind. In the '70s and '80s we on the Peninsula were lucky enough to have him acting in our midst under his given name, Andy Philpot. He has since moved to Los Angeles and has obviously been doing more than waiting tables and changing his name.

Lind has an adequate singing voice and handles the always-tough-on-the-performers Sondheim songs well. But his acting is far more than adequate. Especially in his quieter moments, he is honest, easy and graceful onstage, and he brings with him flawless technical skills.

The rest of the "company" is a bit more hit and miss, but there are some solid performances. Denise Terrazas as Sarah demonstrates how to "take the stage" — not over-act — while in full control of your performance, bringing to it all the energy and focus you've got.

Kimber Pryor also rips off some fine acting riffs as the tough-as-nails cynic Joanne. Ron Genauer, her perkier and happier hubby Larry, also turns in a nice performance. Watching him dance '70s disco style is a hoot.

As for the musical numbers, Stephen Tosh's five-piece "orchestra" is strong.

Sondheim is famous for challenging his vocalists, and in this production he throws his toughest 100 mph fast ball to Jan Day as Amy in the number "Getting Married Today." She accepts the challenge well and turns in one of the night's most memorable numbers, maybe not a home run but certainly a ringing double off the wall in left center field.

Lind and Erin Jerozal as his stewardess/girlfriend, weave a nice rendition of "Barcelona," and the whole company shines in the opening number of Act Two, "Side by Side/What Would We Do Without You?"

There are other strong numbers — Pryor's interpretation of "The Ladies Who Lunch" should not go unmentioned — particularly Lind's two act-closers, "Marry Me a Little" and "Being Alive."

As for the choreography, it's a pretty small stage for 14 bodies to move comfortably on, but Akard manages some imaginative staging and movement. The dance number "Tick Tock" featuring assistant choreographer Sherri Beck is particularly fine, and Akard's handling of the monster opening number in Act Two crackles with creativity.

The set, unfortunately, works against this piece from the word go. The design is functional, but it is painted such a drab and depressing color that no matter how much spirit or energy is on stage, it's going to feel as if the play is being performed in mud. It desperately needs some color or life.

Holly Goodwin and Rhonda Griffith have come up with appropriately yucky '70s costuming (Lordy, did I really used to wear that stuff?) and Chris Wynn's lighting design is generally pleasing, with the exception of a few important moments that are played in unfit parts of the stage.

There is certainly enough here to recommend this production, but if you're like me, when you walk out you'll better understand why Fiddler on the Roof and Man of La Mancha are staged so often and why Company isn't.

Films in Forest's camp-like ambiance lends itself to summer

says. "We build bonfires on either side of the screen, which adds to the rustic, camp-like atmosphere. It's a unique experience to watch a movie outside."

To promote the festival, local disc jockeys have agreed to give away free tickets. They will drop hints about certain films and callers must guess the correct titles. "Off the air, of course," Renner says.

The festival's final week will introduce an added feature — short films produced by cinema students from the University of Southern California, including one that was nominated for an Academy Award.

The theater is located at the corner of Santa Rita and Mountain View in Carmel. The box office opens at 8 p.m. and the films begin at dusk. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children under 12.

Season passes can also be purchased for $50, good for admission to 27 films.

Forest Theater receives Packard Foundation grant, opens new season

THE FOREST Theater Guild has announced the line-up for its 1996 Summer Season. Here's the run-down:

■ The musical Kismet, directed by Dale Lefler and featuring I Cantori Di Carmel director Sal Ferrantelli conducting a full orchestra, will run from June 13 through July 13, Fridays through Sundays. Tickets are $12.

Performance times are 8 p.m. June 14, 15, 23, 28, 29, 30, July 5, 6, 7, 12, 13. Shows take place at the Outdoor Forest Theater, Santa Rita at Mountain View, Carmel. Phone 626-1681 or 624-2522.

■ Archibald MacLeish's Pulitzer Prize-winning J.B., featuring Dr. Hendy Littlefield as J.B. and direction by Broadway-trained Geoffrey Blaisdell, runs from July 18 until Aug. 4.

A grant of $25,000 was received by Jean White, president of the Friends of Sunset Foundation, from the David and Lucile Packard Foundation via the Community Foundation for Monterey County. The money will be used to replace and upgrade the old lighting equipment at the Outdoor Forest Theater.

The City of Carmel, the Forest Theater Guild and Pacific Repertory Theatre were jointly involved in helping to select the new lighting equipment.

Carmel-by-the-Sea Red Cross honors dedicated volunteers

Social Spotlight

By Dodie Barkley

WHEN LYNETTE Balesteri, executive director of the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross, told more than 100 volunteers that even though "we're a small chapter, we get terrific praise from the head office for our volunteer work during catastrophes," the audience burst into resounding applause.

The event was the Carmel Chapter's annual dinner and membership meeting, held Tuesday, June 4 at the Holman Ranch in Carmel Valley. Appreciation was expressed for the chapter's many volunteers, like Bob Walthour for his 50 years of providing Red Cross swimming instruction to high school students, and disaster volunteers like Rosanne Herzog, Laurie Schumann, Tom May, Jean and Harvey Link, James Shillinglaw, Dorothy Steiner, Henry Pollack, Manny Bonilla and Mark Angel for helping 400 San Jose residents whose apartments caved in May 16 due to heavy rain.

Chapter chairperson Elinor Laiolo thanked the directors of the three committees, one of which every volunteer must serve on: Jean Snow of the Armed Forces Emergency services, Marlene Haskell-Brickner of the Disaster services and Serge Aronovici of Emergency Communications services.

Area representatives were also mentioned. They are: Big Sur, Penny Vieregge; Cachagua, Nanci Lambert; Carmel-by-the-Sea, Tom May; Carmel Valley, Dorothy McEwen (who also donated wine, planned and prepared dinner and allowed the use of the Holman Ranch for the annual meeting); and Pebble Beach, Peggy Mauz.

On the veranda, just before dinner was served, Carey Crockett did caricatures of attendees and the Dixlanders provided live music.

The new board of directors for 1996-97 are Elinor Laiolo, John Tormey, Pat Steele, Diane Green and Gwen McEwen.

As I watched all the volunteers being honored, I was reminded of the old adage that the getting is in the giving.

Community honors day care provider

Cyndee Milligan was speechless as she entered the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club on Sunday, June 2. Moreover, the more than 100 parents and children who were shouting "Surprise!" laughed, because Cyndee is never speechless.

For 17 years Cyndee has been providing day care for more than 30 children of Carmel Valley parents, but that's not all.

Stories from teens, parents and teachers attested to her boundless inspiration and achievement-oriented attitude toward the children in her charge.

May Kitagawa and Carmel attorney Lori Silver told me that Cyndee has three children of her own. When she takes them anywhere, she takes all the children with her, including diapers, food and drink. So when her children go swimming, the other little ones get inspired to take up the sport, or when her children attend other activities, the day care children are inspired to do likewise.

Kitagawa told me that she has always wanted to fete Cyndee because there is no caregiver who has done more for her children than Cyndee has.

Silver told a story of someone in Carmel Valley who had adopted a wild baby boar. Within one year the animal had gained 600 pounds. One day the boar got loose and tried to knock down Cyndee's door as six of her charges hid in a room.

Cyndee, brandishing a broom, chased the boar away and rushed to help her 80-year-old neighbor who had been knocked to the ground by the boar.

The festivities included a roast with memorable, fun stories, skits, a special gift and a tree planted in Cyndee's honor at the Carmel Valley Community Park.

International club recognizes Carmel member

Members of the Monterey Peninsula Altrusa club came out in force Monday, June 3 at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel for a dinner held to elect new officers and to honor one of their own.

Altrusa, which stands for amity, loyalty, talent, reciprocity, unity, service and achievement, is the oldest women's service organization in the United States. The club started in 1917 and is recognized for helping women in the career world.

Carmel resident Dr. Iona Logie was nominated for the 1996 Marilyn Atwood Outstanding Altrusan Award, and was presented a trophy by Helen Kamas, Governor of Altrusan District 11.

Logie, a member of the club for 40 years, was feted by her fellow Altrusans as an unsung hero, a viable member and a guiding force in helping outstanding young women's

Stokes Adobe acquires new owners

Kirk and Dorothea Probasco have opened Stokes Adobe, a restaurant in a Monterey adobe built in 1833, and unveiled the menu to friends on Sunday, June 3. The adobe is in beautiful condition and reflects a warm and friendly ambiance.

Dorothea told me that the Stokes Adobe has a resident ghost. She is sure it's Hattie Gragg, who lived there from 1890 until her death in 1948. Dorothea said that during Hattie's tenure there, the adobe was the center of social activity in Monterey.

"Is Hattie friendly?" I inquired.

"I think so," Dorothea answered. "She turned on the coffee machine once."

That's a good omen. Coffee is always needed in a restaurant.

Judging by the guests in attendance Sunday, the Stokes Adobe will be a success.

Women's Club inducts new officers

The Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula Women's Club installed new officers for 1996-1997 on Wednesday, June 5 during lunch at the Church on Carmel Valley Road.

The new officers are: Ruth McCampbell, president; Marcella Stull, first vice president; Adele Rasch, second vice president; Joanne Anderson, third vice president; Glen Chang, treasurer; Jean Macres, Tuesday Circle leader; Ada Morton, Wednesday Circle leader, and Kathy Warthan, Church Women United representative.

Following the officer installation program, a five-part men's chorus, led by music director Lou Mathews, entertained the gathering.

The Women's Club holds two large art and rummage sales each year to help fund church needs.

'SMART' homes come with a cost — and a whole lot of hype

■ Second of a two-part series.

UNTIL RECENTLY, there's been more hype than reality with the high-tech SMART House — like Richard Nixon's visit to Russia 40 years ago when America's latest futuristic kitchen appliances were rolled out to the amazement of the world.

At the time, few Americans could afford or even find out where to purchase these products.

And pioneers of the SMART House, which is a trademarked set of electronic plans that grew out of a cooperative research and development effort begun by the National Association of Home Builders in 1984, have figured out it comes with a cost.

California Trends

By Bradley Inman

"When I consider all of the aggravation and the money, I wouldn't spend as much again the next time," said Bob Becker, a Tiburon homeowner.

In 1991, he built a high-tech castle in the Hillhaven district with about $70,000 in electronic upgrades.

"I have always been fascinated by electronics and technology, but I never thought I would go this far," Becker said.

Gadget city

Designed by San Rafael architect Chris Craiker, the California

contemporary is packed with high-tech gadgets.

■ When Becker awakes in the middle of the night, he can hit a button, which will create a lighted path to whatever room he is headed for — to the kitchen for a late night snack, to the bathroom or to the back door to let the dog out.

■ When no one is home and a United Parcel Service driver rings the doorbell, Becker's office phone is supposed to ring giving Becker full audio and video view of the delivery person. He then can give instructions via his office phone.

■ When the temperature changes outside, the automatic drapes will open or close to take advantage of climatic conditions and warm or cool the house.

"I use about half of it," said Becker.

And in some cases, the rest of the house hasn't caught up with the Smart House ideas. "So far, we haven't gotten any appliances such as ovens and ranges that are wired for this. The promise is there, but they ran into problems with the chip."

Plus, Becker said that AT&T dropped out of the SMART House alliance so the SMART dial tone that is supposed to activate much of the high-tech gadgetry isn't working quite right.

"I was a Guinea pig, but I only regret it financially," Becker said. "I still have one of the smartest houses anywhere."

Prices dropping

The cost of the SMART House is coming down dramatically, according to Ed Abelite, a San Jose home builder.

"Now, you can pre-wire whole tracts of homes without a lot of money and it is easy to upgrade with the latest technology," Abelite said. "Just six months ago, builders could not afford to pre-wire but all of sudden it got cheap, and

'When I consider all of the aggravation and the money, I wouldn't spend as much again the next time.'

— Bob Becker,
a Tiburon homeowner

there is a strong market for this stuff."

And the technology innovation never stops.

Now, the houses are being equipped with "level 5" phone lines, which is a Department of Defense standard, according to Abelite. The new ISDN modem lines are only "level 3."

The levels are rated by the number of twists per inch in the wiring — the more twists, the less the interference and greater capacity for super-fast Internet access and other computer applications.

In a SMART house, the homeowner can program the details of the house from a personal computer. In the early versions, the programs were pre-set and less flexible and personalized.

"We give you a PC port that plugs into the computer and you make the house do whatever you want," said Abelite.

County Realtors score a victory with Prop. 90

THIS WEEK, Sheryl McKenzie, government affairs director for the Monterey County Association of Realtors (MCAR), enlightens us on Proposition 90.

With the help of MCAR, the county has put out the welcome mat to senior citizens who would like to reside here.

Last month, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors voted unanimously to allow the Proposition 90 property tax exemption in the county. Prop. 90, approved by California voters in November 1988, was enabling legislation, not automatic.

PROP. 90

In essence, it provides homeowners with an exemption from the increased property taxes they would otherwise pay. The home in the new county must be bought or built within two years of the sale in the old county.

The legislation came about in the hopes that older, longtime homeowners ("empty nesters") would purchase a smaller home if they could retain their current property tax base.

Monterey County joins 10 other counties — Kern, San Mateo, San Diego, Orange, Marin, Los Angeles, Alameda, Santa Clara, Modoc and Ventura — that currently allow the Prop. 90 transfer. The transfer to these counties may come from any of California's 58 counties.

Subcommittee's efforts

For the past three years, an MCAR subcommittee has been working to convince the board of supervisors that Prop. 90 would be good for Monterey County. It is difficult to predict property tax revenue gains or losses as a result of the Prop. 90 program.

However, state estimates indicate that senior homeowners tend to spend more money on goods and services to furnish their homes; they buy cars and visit restaurants, shop locally and contribute to the county through volunteerism and in countless other ways.

Additionally, housing resales stimulate the local economy with escrow and inspection fees, home improvements and repairs. There are many cogent arguments to support the economic benefits gained with the adoption of Prop. 90.

Many thanks to MCAR's Prop. 90 subcommittee chaired by Sharon Gedryn, and whose members include Ken Allen, Arlene Beesley, Craig Boswell, Jeff Davi, Tom Fleming, Patricia Grooms, Vicky Lewis, Tom Rowley and Pete Salmonsen.

A special thanks to Sandy Haney, CEO of MCAR, who brought this issue to the supervisors' attention nearly three years ago in her capacity as administrative assistant to Supervisor Judy Pennycook.

And thanks to Monterey County staff members who assisted the subcommittee throughout the process: Bruce Reeves, county assessor, and Jim McKnew and Rosie Pando from the county administrative office.

One final note of interest: Every county in the state allows the Proposition 60 exemption. It basically has the same requirements as Prop. 90, except property tax base is transferred to residential property within the same county.

If you wish to contact Sheryl McKenzie about Prop. 90, you may call her at 375-5242.
